Soviet, France in Step Toward Peace in Europe

SIGN TREATY OF NON-AGGRESSION BETWEEN NATIONS

PACT INITIALED BY REPRESENTATIVES OF 2 COUNTRIES IN PARIS

CONCLUDES NEGOTIATIONS THAT WERE STARTED EARLY IN MAY

(Copyright, 1931, by United Press)

London, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—A long step toward peace in Europe was believed to have been taken today with the conclusion of a treaty of non-aggression between France and Soviet Russia.

The United Press learned that the pact had been initialed by representatives of France and Russia in Paris, concluding negotiations started in May.

The pact binds these nations, two of Europe's most intense political rivals since the world war, to maintain strict neutrality in event the other is attacked without provocation by a third power or group of powers.

Otherwise, it was understood, the agreement closely follows the lines of the German-Soviet Union neutrality accord.

The conclusion of the treaty was regarded as significant in the relations of France and Russia. It furthermore was believed certain to have a strong influence on the other European nations, particularly France's ally, Poland on the Russian border.

The Soviet authorities repeatedly have charged France with participation in alleged anti-Russian plots. The Moscow press, government controlled, frequently has pointed to France as the future leader of a "capitalist war" against Russia. French diplomatic relations with Moscow often have been severely strained.

2 MEN DEAD IN "LITTLE ITALY" GANG WARFARE

ANOTHER WOUNDED, BATTLE RAGES IN NEW YORK STREET

2 KILLED WERE SHOT DOWN IN SPECTACULAR RUNNING PISTOL BARRAGE

New York, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Two men are dead and another is wounded after gang warfare was resumed during the night in "Little Italy," New York's Italian district.

The two men killed were shot down in a spectacular running pistol barrage laid down at Broome and Mott streets, the "Little Italy" of lower Manhattan island.

The third shooting victim was wounded as result of gossip arising from the earlier baby killings in Harlem's "Little Italy" when gunfire sprayed a group of playing children, killing one and wounding four.

The two men killed were Joseph (Pimples) Cignia, 21, and Anthony (Tony the Wop) Justiano, 25, both arrested six months ago in Buffalo on liquor charges.

The wounded man is Charles Focarile, 19, and the man charged with the shooting is John Mucciola, 24, brother of Joseph, reported to have told police the names of the gunmen who killed the five-year-old child in the "baby killings" recently.

Cignia and Justiano were strolling through the crowded, narrow downtown streets near where "Little Italy" and Chinatown merge. They recognized three gangsters and fled.

The gunmen, all shooting as they ran, pursued them through the streets. Screaming grown-ups and children sprawled and sprinted into doorways.

Cignia fell with many bullets in his back. He toppled into a gutter in front of a pool room.

Justiano fell as he dove into a doorway of a meat market just across the street.

The gunmen turned, ran through a Mott Street building and emerged from the back entrance, then disappeared.

Police said the killings resulted from a bootlegging feud. Cignia, they said, was sentenced to New York reformatory in June, 1927, and his companion served there soon after.

Justiano, they said, is a brother of Kitty Doyle who shot and killed Patrolman David Sheehan in 1925.

Earlier, according to police reports, Focarile and Mucciolo had a fist fight after an argument over the baby killers of East 107th Street.

Mucciola drew a gun, they said, and Focarile fell with two bullet wounds near the base of the spine. Mucciola was captured after a short chase. He had no gun, but a pistol was found near the scene of the shooting.

GROUP OF 4 VAGABOND COUNTERFEITERS TAKEN

NOW IN JAIL AT EAST GRAND FORKS, ALL DIES SEIZED

POLICE CLAIM THEY HAD PASSED SEVERAL SPECIMENS OF SPURIOUS COIN

GANG CARRIED EQUIPMENT IN HANDBAGS, OPERATING IN SEVERAL STATES

East Grand Forks, Minn., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—A group of four vagabond counterfeiters were held in the county jail today pending arrival of federal agents.

The men and their portable dies and equipment were captured by police of East Grand Forks after they had passed several specimens of the spurious coin here. They gave their names as Mike Saniki, 60, Minneapolis; Stanley Putroka, 37, Chicago; Frank Cimski, 48, Ashland, Wis., and Klement Skunti, 47, Austria.

Carrying their counterfeiting tools in two large handbags the men made their way about the northwest on boxcars and passed their products in several dozen towns of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Wisconsin, according to Policeman George Keller who obtained a confession.

The men specialized in producing half dollars and quarters and had a small quantity of lead for producing another batch of coins with them when arrested, Keller said.

The arrest was made by Chief of Police Ben Hagen and Patrolman Arch Mero after an East Grand Forks storekeeper became suspicious of the men when they displayed too many half dollars.

The men came here from Moorhead and Breckenridge, they said.

Gov. Pinchot Wants Special Session on Unemployment

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania today sent a letter to President Hoover urging an extra session of congress immediately to "meet the national emergency."

Pinchot said the total number of unemployed in Pennsylvania is more than 900,000.

FOUR AIRMEN OF ONTARIO FORESTRY AIR FORCE KILLED

COMES AS RESULT OF SERIES OF AIRPLANE SMASH-UPS TUESDAY

THE LARGE SHIP WAS CIRCLING RAINY LAKE TO AID 2 OTHER AVIATORS IN WATER

Fort Frances, Ont., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Four airmen of the Ontario forestry air force were killed Tuesday as the result of a series of airplane smashups involving three planes on Rainy Lake.

The dead were:

J. B. Stewart, Toronto, in charge of the forestry service.

P. A. Hutton, Toronto, pilot.

Alfred Runciman, Strafford, co-pilot.

C. V. Greer, Sault Ste. Marie, air engineer.

The four men lost their lives when their large all-metal cabin plane dived into the water near the United States side of Rainy Lake while circling to aid two other aviators in the water.

Greer was involved in two of the three crackups. The series of accidents started with a thunder storm late Monday which threw planes carrying Greer and Tom Mahon, and George Delahay into the lake. The two planes had been cruising on duty.

Greer and Mahon were thrown clear when their plane crashed and although Greer could not swim, Mahon brought him to shore and the men made their way to Fort Frances.

Meanwhile Delahay's plane had been disabled by the storm and the large cabin plane set out to search for him. Hutton was at the controls.

About 20 miles from Fort Frances, near the American side, the rescue party sighted Delahay waving a garment from his plane. As they circled lower to come to his aid, their plane crashed into the water.

Greer and Hutton were thrown out of the plane and Runciman and Stewart's bodies went down in the cabin. Delahay and a boatman managed to pick up the bodies of Greer and Hutton, and boats today sought to salvage the sunken plane.

London, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Willette Kershaw, American actress at present starring in London, was found chloroformed in her apartment today.

Police found that the apartment had been rifled.

Miss Kershaw was appearing in "The Well of Loneliness" at the Caumartin theater.

CONTROVERSIES DIE DOWN IN LEGION MEETING

MILD RECOMMENDATIONS TO BE MADE ON TWO SUBJECTS THREATENING DEBATE

ONE REFERS TO PROHIBITION AND OTHER TO SOLDIERS' PREFERENCE LAW

Rochester, Minn., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—The American Legion convention's resolutions committee today apparently had prevented any controversy from splitting the annual sessions here by drafting mild recommendations on two subjects on which debate had been vigorous.

The committee recommended that a resolution asking a referendum on the matter of prohibition be submitted to the people. This was to prevent a much stronger resolution which would have placed the Minnesota Legionaires on record as favoring repeal of the Volstead law if the measure had passed.

In the matter of the farmer-labor state administration, it was understood the committee suggested a resolution asking the strict enforcement of the soldiers' preference law. A resolution has been suggested attacking Commissioner W. D. Stewart of the game and fish department in the case of the replacement of F. W. Stoneberg, North Branch game warden who committed suicide.

It was understood no mention of the Stoneberg affair would be made by name and the only reference would be the general resolution asking the enforcement of the soldiers' preference law. Gov. Floyd B. Olson sent a message from the Gull lake cottage where he is resting to the Legion convention saying he would use his powers to see the law was strictly enforced. He also said he was in accord with the Legion's "program along non-political lines."

Even the resolution asking strict enforcement of the veterans' preference law was objected to in some quarters as being a hidden attack on the farmer-labor administration. A floor fight on the matter is almost assured, Legion delegates said, although it will be mild compared with that which would have resulted from the more strenuous proposal.

The Winona delegation offered a resolution opposing the nine-foot channel in the Mississippi river. The measure was tabled. However, a committee may be appointed today to study the transportation needs of the state and make recommendations later.

Election of officers for the coming year and selection of the 1932 convention site gave indications of a lively battle at today's final business session.

Candidates for the post of State Commander which A. B. Kapplin, of Duluth, will vacate, included Oscar Youngdahl, Minneapolis; Lewis E. Lohmann, St. Paul; C. J. Wittbecker, Fergus Falls; and Dr. Gustaf Anderson, Cambridge.

Duluth and Bemidji were rivals for the next year's convention.

ALLEGED MOONSHINE SALESMAN INVOLVED IN INDIAN KILLING

International Falls, Minn., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Rudolph Anderson, alleged moonshine salesman, involved in the double Indian killing at Ray, July 25, was arraigned before United States Commissioner J. H. Brown Tuesday and bound over to the October term of the Duluth federal court.

H. H. Palmer, International Falls, represented the defendant and George Heisey and S. J. Bang, St. Paul, assistant federal attorney and special investigator, assisted in the prosecution.

PICK AND SHOVEL WORK IN PRISON REDUCED HIS WEIGHT

Chicago, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Titus A. Haffa was back from Leavenworth today, a healthy, well muscled example of what happens when an alderman goes to prison.

Haffa, a former 43rd ward alderman, weighed 215 pounds when he went to prison 17 months ago for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. He came back weighing 159, a loss of 56 pounds.

"A pick and shovel did it," he explained.

"SLIM" BALLARD IDENTIFIED AS A BANK BANDIT

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH ON ROAD NEAR RED WING SUNDAY

DECLARED TO BE ONE OF PAIR HOLDING UP ESTHERVILLE, IOWA BANK IN 1929

Red Wing, Minn., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Harry "Slim" Ballard, Twin City and Chicago gunman, found shot to death, Sunday, was positively identified today by Ray Scott of the Iowa criminal bureau as one of two bandits who held up the Estherville, Ia., bank in 1929.

Ballard had been sought for questioning in connection with the crime and another bandit known as "Big Fitz" was sought as his accomplice.

Two pistols found on the road with the body of the slain man were regarded as the most important clues. Melvin A. Passolt, state criminal bureau head, took personal charge of the investigation of the ownership of the guns.

Numbers of a Colt automatic and a .45 caliber Smith and Wesson were to be checked against numbers on record in the Twin Cities and if this fails to identify the killer authorities at Chicago will be asked to help.

A blood stained thumb print on the handle of the gun found clutched in Ballard's hand did not give authorities any help in solving the crime. The print was smudged and was of no value.

Goodhue county authorities sought to back track on traces of Ballard and companions here. Evidence that Ballard, a woman and another man were in Red Wing, Sunday afternoon was sifted for clues.

According to C. J. Skogan, manager of the Pearl Cafe, Ballard and his companions ate dinner between 4 and 5 p. m. Ballard was nervous and finished before the others, Skogan said.

"He paced back and forth and finally said 'are we going to stay here all night?'" The woman was of the Clara Bow type with reddish hair, nice looking and wearing a black dress and a black Eugenie hat. The other man was dressed in a light brownish suit," Skogan said.

When the party left the cafe, Skogan said, they left a $10 bill to pay for the meal.

TREMENDOUS WAVES AT ATLANTIC CITY BEACH

BETHLEN'S CABINET IN HUNGARY RESIGNS TODAY

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—The cabinet of Count Stephen Bethlen resigned today.

Nicholas Northy, regent and head of the state, accepted the resignations and at once commissioned Count Bethlen to form a new cabinet.

Hungary has shared in the financial difficulties sweeping most of the countries of Europe during the past few weeks, and the position of the government has been increasingly difficult.

2 CUBAN PLANES BATTLE REBEL TROOPS LANDING

DESCRIBED IN OFFICIAL REPORTS FROM GIBARA, ORIENTE PROVINCE

BOTH OF PLANES ARE DAMAGED WHEN BULLETS PUNCTURE GASOLINE TANKS

By K. D. GILMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Havana, Aug. 19.—A battle between two federal airplanes and a boat landing rebel troops and munitions was described today in reports from Gibara, Oriente province.

Both the planes, which belonged to the Cuban army, were damaged when their gasoline tanks were punctured by bullets but Captain Martull, pilot of one of the craft, said he had been able to destroy the boat "William II" though not until after it had unloaded its ammunition, arms and men.

Cane fields are being burned by rebels in Chaparra province, other dispatches said today.

Officials said reports from Tampa that the rebel troops had cut communications between Havana and President Gerardo Machado's headquarters at Santa Clara were "silly," since the president could be brought to Havana by airplane at any time.

K. C. to Erect Statue on Notre Dame Campus for Knute Rockne

French Lick, Ind., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Erection by the Knights of Columbus of a memorial on the Notre Dame campus for Knute Rockne, famous football coach, would be provided in a resolution considered by members of the order today at the annual supreme council convention.

SMITH CLAIMS ROSENWALD OFFERED HIM STOCK TO QUIT SENATE RACE

Frank L. Smith of Dwight, Ill., who in an open letter stated that Julius Rosenwald (right), millionaire Chicago business man and philanthropist, offered him Sears-Roebuck stock worth $555,000 to withdraw from the 1926 race for the United States senate. Mr. Smith was elected but was denied the seat by the senate.

STRONG UNDERTOW CARRIES FORTY OF BATHERS TO SEA

1 MAN DROWNED, LIFE GUARDS REPORT RESCUING ABOUT 50 PERSONS

FIRST WAVE 8 FEET HIGH, FIRST OF SERIES TO ENTRAP BEACH HABITUES

Atlantic City, Aug. 19. — (U.P.) — A series of tremendous waves struck the beach at Atlantic City today and the terrific undertow carried 40 bathers to sea.

One man was drowned and life guards reported they had rescued about 50 persons. The man who was drowned was not immediately identified. Guards first identified him as Frank Carr of Washington, D. C., but Carr later reported his safety to authorities. His body was brought in but he was dead when rescusitation work started. Several others rescued from the treacherous hold of the undertow were injured seriously.

The series of waves, starting with one described as being eight feet high, struck in the center of the beach where about 60 persons were gathered. A strong undertow gripped at least 40 bathers, pulling them out into the ocean as more and more of the heavy combers rolled in.

Screams of the entrapped bathers attracted crowds. Mothers, whose children were on the beach, raced to the foot of North Carolina Avenue and shouted for their children.

Captains Alexis Miller and Richard Hughes, in charge of life guards, collected seven guards including Allen Turner, captain of the Princeton University swimming team, and started rescue work. The guards put out a life boat which overturned, spilling the rescuers into the sea.

Dr. Charles L. Bossert, chief surgeon, and Dr. Norman Reeves of the Atlantic City surgeons' force, joined with the rescuers and they formed a human chain. One by one the bathers, nearing exhaustion from the force of the undertow were pulled back to safety. Many of those rescued were near exhaustion but were revived.

FORCED TO ALIGHT OFF KETOI ISLET, NEAR MUROTON BAY

JAPANESE MINISTRY OF COMMUNICATIONS ANNOUNCES RADIOS

PROPOSED FLIGHT FROM PETROPAVLOVSK, SIBERIA, TO NEMURO HALTED

Tokio, Japan, Aug. 19.—(U.P.) — Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh alighted off Ketoi Islet, opposite Muroton Bay, at 6:30 P. M. today (5:30 A. M. CST.), the ministry of communications announced.

Blocked by storms in their attempt to fly from Siberia to Japan, after having once been forced down by plane trouble, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh turned back on their course and landed in the Kurile group late today.

At 4 P. M. the Ochiishi radio announced receipt of a message from Mrs. Lindbergh that stormy clouds loomed ahead of the plane and the flight from Petropavlovsk, Siberia, to Nemuro was halted.

Ketoi Islet is one of the Kurile islands, about half way between Petropavlovsk, on Kamchatka Peninsula, and Nemuro, their goal on the island of Hokkaido, Japan.

It is some 1,100 miles almost due north of Tokio.

The Kurile Islands, stretching like a necklace northward from the Hokkaido, a large island just north of the main island of Japan, are stepping stones along a dangerous section of the Pacific.

The fog in that area is almost continuous, giving the Pacific in the vicinity the significant name of the "smoky seas."

Flying weather along the Kuriles is almost invariably bad, with few clear days over more than a few miles at a stretch.

The Lindberghs took off from the Kamchatka seaport at 8:45 A. M. (5:45 P. M. Tuesday CST.) and had proceeded only 25 miles on their hazardous journey through the treacherous region of fog and sudden storms when forced to alight because of motor trouble.

The trouble was not serious and at 10:35 A. M. Mrs. Lindbergh radioed they were taking off a second time on the 900-mile flight.

The forced landing was made at Avatcha Bay.

At 12:30 P. M. Mrs. Lindbergh sent a message to the Ochiishi radio station here saying their speed was 95 knots, about 105 miles an hour.

During the time Lindbergh was working with the plane his wife kept the world informed of his progress and sent assurances of their safety.

The misadventure was the second forced landing made on the long journey. In flying from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Nome, Col. Lindbergh encountered fog which forced him to alight until the weather cleared.

The couple had been at Petropavlovsk almost three days since completing a 1,500-mile journey from Nome across Bering Sea with but one stop, at Karaginski Island. Storms and fogs delayed their departure.

SHARP BATTLE LINES DRAWN IN DEMPSEY CASE

DEMPSEY SUES IN RENO, AND SHE SUES IN LOS ANGELES

NOT MUCH MORE TO BE DONE UNTIL COURTS OF NEVADA AND CALIFORNIA ACT

Hollywood, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Battle lines having at least been sharply drawn in the Jack Dempsey-Estelle Taylor divorce feud, Miss Taylor settled down today to perfect herself in the vaudeville part which she will take in the east.

The actress said that since Dempsey has sued for divorce in Reno and she had sued him for divorce in Los Angeles, there wasn't much more to be done until the courts of Nevada and California act.

"I'm not talking much about the divorce," she said. "It's sort of a relief to get the thing out in the open after all these months of negotiations, but that's about all I can say. I don't think it's very good policy to talk at a time like this.

"Now that we have the thing into court, I'm going ahead learning my lines for my vaudeville tour. I leave here Saturday for the east, you know."

Miss Taylor was served last night with a summons in the Reno case.

"My car got stuck in traffic downtown," she explained. "A man walked up beside it and handed me a paper. As he turned and walked away he yelled: 'greetings from Reno.'" The "greetings," she discovered, were the papers in Dempsey's suit.

PICK AND SHOVEL WORK IN PRISON REDUCED HIS WEIGHT

Chicago, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Titus A. Haffa was back from Leavenworth today, a healthy, well muscled example of what happens when an alderman goes to prison.

Haffa, a former 43rd ward alderman, weighed 215 pounds when he went to prison 17 months ago for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. He came back weighing 159, a loss of 56 pounds.

"A pick and shovel did it," he explained.

"SLIM" BALLARD IDENTIFIED AS A BANK BANDIT

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH ON ROAD NEAR RED WING SUNDAY

DECLARED TO BE ONE OF PAIR HOLDING UP ESTHERVILLE, IOWA BANK IN 1929

Red Wing, Minn., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Harry "Slim" Ballard, Twin City and Chicago gunman, found shot to death, Sunday, was positively identified today by Ray Scott of the Iowa criminal bureau as one of two bandits who held up the Estherville, Ia., bank in 1929.

Ballard had been sought for questioning in connection with the crime and another bandit known as "Big Fitz" was sought as his accomplice.

Two pistols found on the road with the body of the slain man were regarded as the most important clues. Melvin A. Passolt, state criminal bureau head, took personal charge of the investigation of the ownership of the guns.

Numbers of a Colt automatic and a .45 caliber Smith and Wesson were to be checked against numbers on record in the Twin Cities and if this fails to identify the killer authorities at Chicago will be asked to help.

A blood stained thumb print on the handle of the gun found clutched in Ballard's hand did not give authorities any help in solving the crime. The print was smudged and was of no value.

Goodhue county authorities sought to back track on traces of Ballard and companions here. Evidence that Ballard, a woman and another man were in Red Wing, Sunday afternoon was sifted for clues.

According to C. J. Skogan, manager of the Pearl Cafe, Ballard and his companions ate dinner between 4 and 5 p. m. Ballard was nervous and finished before the others, Skogan said.

"He paced back and forth and finally said 'are we going to stay here all night?'" The woman was of the Clara Bow type with reddish hair, nice looking and wearing a black dress and a black Eugenie hat. The other man was dressed in a light brownish suit," Skogan said.

When the party left the cafe, Skogan said, they left a $10 bill to pay for the meal.

TREMENDOUS WAVES AT ATLANTIC CITY BEACH

BETHLEN'S CABINET IN HUNGARY RESIGNS TODAY

Budapest, Hungary, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—The cabinet of Count Stephen Bethlen resigned today.

Nicholas Northy, regent and head of the state, accepted the resignations and at once commissioned Count Bethlen to form a new cabinet.

Hungary has shared in the financial difficulties sweeping most of the countries of Europe during the past few weeks, and the position of the government has been increasingly difficult.

2 CUBAN PLANES BATTLE REBEL TROOPS LANDING

DESCRIBED IN OFFICIAL REPORTS FROM GIBARA, ORIENTE PROVINCE

BOTH OF PLANES ARE DAMAGED WHEN BULLETS PUNCTURE GASOLINE TANKS

By K. D. GILMORE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Havana, Aug. 19.—A battle between two federal airplanes and a boat landing rebel troops and munitions was described today in reports from Gibara, Oriente province.

Both the planes, which belonged to the Cuban army, were damaged when their gasoline tanks were punctured by bullets but Captain Martull, pilot of one of the craft, said he had been able to destroy the boat "William II" though not until after it had unloaded its ammunition, arms and men.

Cane fields are being burned by rebels in Chaparra province, other dispatches said today.

Officials said reports from Tampa that the rebel troops had cut communications between Havana and President Gerardo Machado's headquarters at Santa Clara were "silly," since the president could be brought to Havana by airplane at any time.

STRONG UNDERTOW CARRIES FORTY OF BATHERS TO SEA

1 MAN DROWNED, LIFE GUARDS REPORT RESCUING ABOUT 50 PERSONS

FIRST WAVE 8 FEET HIGH, FIRST OF SERIES TO ENTRAP BEACH HABITUES

Atlantic City, Aug. 19. — (U.P.) — A series of tremendous waves struck the beach at Atlantic City today and the terrific undertow carried 40 bathers to sea.

One man was drowned and life guards reported they had rescued about 50 persons. The man who was drowned was not immediately identified. Guards first identified him as Frank Carr of Washington, D. C., but Carr later reported his safety to authorities. His body was brought in but he was dead when rescusitation work started. Several others rescued from the treacherous hold of the undertow were injured seriously.

The series of waves, starting with one described as being eight feet high, struck in the center of the beach where about 60 persons were gathered. A strong undertow gripped at least 40 bathers, pulling them out into the ocean as more and more of the heavy combers rolled in.

Screams of the entrapped bathers attracted crowds. Mothers, whose children were on the beach, raced to the foot of North Carolina Avenue and shouted for their children.

Captains Alexis Miller and Richard Hughes, in charge of life guards, collected seven guards including Allen Turner, captain of the Princeton University swimming team, and started rescue work. The guards put out a life boat which overturned, spilling the rescuers into the sea.

Dr. Charles L. Bossert, chief surgeon, and Dr. Norman Reeves of the Atlantic City surgeons' force, joined with the rescuers and they formed a human chain. One by one the bathers, nearing exhaustion from the force of the undertow were pulled back to safety. Many of those rescued were near exhaustion but were revived.

FORCED TO ALIGHT OFF KETOI ISLET, NEAR MUROTON BAY

JAPANESE MINISTRY OF COMMUNICATIONS ANNOUNCES RADIOS

PROPOSED FLIGHT FROM PETROPAVLOVSK, SIBERIA, TO NEMURO HALTED

Tokio, Japan, Aug. 19.—(U.P.) — Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh alighted off Ketoi Islet, opposite Muroton Bay, at 6:30 P. M. today (5:30 A. M. CST.), the ministry of communications announced.

Blocked by storms in their attempt to fly from Siberia to Japan, after having once been forced down by plane trouble, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh turned back on their course and landed in the Kurile group late today.

At 4 P. M. the Ochiishi radio announced receipt of a message from Mrs. Lindbergh that stormy clouds loomed ahead of the plane and the flight from Petropavlovsk, Siberia, to Nemuro was halted.

Ketoi Islet is one of the Kurile islands, about half way between Petropavlovsk, on Kamchatka Peninsula, and Nemuro, their goal on the island of Hokkaido, Japan.

It is some 1,100 miles almost due north of Tokio.

The Kurile Islands, stretching like a necklace northward from the Hokkaido, a large island just north of the main island of Japan, are stepping stones along a dangerous section of the Pacific.

The fog in that area is almost continuous, giving the Pacific in the vicinity the significant name of the "smoky seas."

Flying weather along the Kuriles is almost invariably bad, with few clear days over more than a few miles at a stretch.

The Lindberghs took off from the Kamchatka seaport at 8:45 A. M. (5:45 P. M. Tuesday CST.) and had proceeded only 25 miles on their hazardous journey through the treacherous region of fog and sudden storms when forced to alight because of motor trouble.

The trouble was not serious and at 10:35 A. M. Mrs. Lindbergh radioed they were taking off a second time on the 900-mile flight.

The forced landing was made at Avatcha Bay.

At 12:30 P. M. Mrs. Lindbergh sent a message to the Ochiishi radio station here saying their speed was 95 knots, about 105 miles an hour.

During the time Lindbergh was working with the plane his wife kept the world informed of his progress and sent assurances of their safety.

The misadventure was the second forced landing made on the long journey. In flying from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Nome, Col. Lindbergh encountered fog which forced him to alight until the weather cleared.

The couple had been at Petropavlovsk almost three days since completing a 1,500-mile journey from Nome across Bering Sea with but one stop, at Karaginski Island. Storms and fogs delayed their departure.

SHARP BATTLE LINES DRAWN IN DEMPSEY CASE

DEMPSEY SUES IN RENO, AND SHE SUES IN LOS ANGELES

NOT MUCH MORE TO BE DONE UNTIL COURTS OF NEVADA AND CALIFORNIA ACT

Hollywood, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Battle lines having at least been sharply drawn in the Jack Dempsey-Estelle Taylor divorce feud, Miss Taylor settled down today to perfect herself in the vaudeville part which she will take in the east.

The actress said that since Dempsey has sued for divorce in Reno and she had sued him for divorce in Los Angeles, there wasn't much more to be done until the courts of Nevada and California act.

"I'm not talking much about the divorce," she said. "It's sort of a relief to get the thing out in the open after all these months of negotiations, but that's about all I can say. I don't think it's very good policy to talk at a time like this.

"Now that we have the thing into court, I'm going ahead learning my lines for my vaudeville tour. I leave here Saturday for the east, you know."

Miss Taylor was served last night with a summons in the Reno case.

"My car got stuck in traffic downtown," she explained. "A man walked up beside it and handed me a paper. As he turned and walked away he yelled: 'greetings from Reno.'" The "greetings," she discovered, were the papers in Dempsey's suit.

MOTL EXPLAINS HIGHWAY WORK

Engineer Who Started Good Roads Movement Here Addresses Rotarians

Motorized and other machine equipment began to replace horse drawn equipment three or four years ago said A. L. Motl, assistant maintenance engineer of the State Highway Department as he addressed the Rotary club Tuesday.

The highway department has thousands of dollars invested in machine equipment of various kinds and conducts 16 servicing stations similar to the building on Laurel street opposite the county jail.

In order to keep trunk highways open the year around the highway department has invested additional thousands of dollars in snowplows and trucks of various kinds.

It has been found that keeping the sides of the road clear will prevent the snow from drifting in the center of the highway.

Minnesota under State Commissioner Babcock early evolved the plan to build roads and to maintain them. Increasing traffic and twelve months a year service has added problems. The speaker described the method of treating frost boils which developed in the spring from layers of ice. It was soived in a simple way by shallow ditching which permitted accumulating water to flow off and not degenerate to a mud basin.

Mr. Motl paid tribute to the Minnesota Highway Patrol and said the two departments are working coordinately.

Rights of way as now secured for highways are 100 feet wide and differ from the old ones which only measured 66 feet. Highway No. 2 in passing through Brainerd will have the 100 foot right of way.

Fifteen years ago Mr. Motl came to Crow Wing county as county highway engineer. He had to hire a guide the first two weeks to find his way in the maze of criss cross roads in the country through sand ruts. Crow Wing county started its program of graded and gravelled roads with a secondary road system coming later. Mr. Motl left Brainerd in 1921 and joined the state organization when the state was undertaking to develop a 7,000 mile system.

Interesting stereopticon views were shown of road building.

President Carl Zapffe announced that officers of the ninth district will meet at Detroit Lakes Thursday and Friday.

Secretary Leigh Slipp mentioned that the Brainerd club is in the upper ten bracket being seventh in attendance in the region.

USE TEAR GAS TO SUBDUE TEMPORARILY INSANE PATIENT

Balmer fought off police with a knife when they attempted to take him from a boarding house room where he had barricaded himself last night. The landlord summoned the officers after hearing Balmer threaten to kill himself.

BRAINERD 25 Years Ago

August 19, 1906

What is said to be the quickest business deal in the history of Brainerd took place today. Frank Swanson, who formerly worked for Jake Omen walked into Jake's shop this afternoon and asked him what he would take for his shop. Jake stated a price and Swanson pulled out a roll and cashed in. He will take possession this evening.

Prof. Woodward has returned from St. Paul and announces that he will probably locate in Brainerd for the winter and begin his work of teaching vocal music about the first of September.

The Horseshoe restaurant, which has been closed for about two weeks will be opened as soon as Mr. West can get sufficient help. The place has been thoroughly overhauled and cleaned from top to bottom. Mr. West says this is the first time the fire has been out of the range in over four years.

In a political way: August 29 is the last date for candidates to file their intention with the county auditor. N. M. Paine will come before the people as candidate for reelection as county commissioner. Friends of Ed. Crust are urging him to enter the race with Paine. It goes without saying that Judge Sanborn, S. R. Adair, A. G. Trommald and W. A. M. Johnstone who hold the positions of probate judge, county treasurer, register of deeds and clerk of court respectively will not be disturbed, and in all probability Prof. Wilson will be the only candidate for county superintendent of schools. George McCullough and E. H. Simmons have been urged to run against Ole Erickon for sheriff. The county attorneys office give most evidence of a scramble for nomination. Judge W. A. Fleming, who has held the position before is making a canvass of the county. Judge J. H. Warner who has presided as municipal judge for the past four years is asking for the position as is also W. W. Bane, attorney. Anton Mahlum will come up for re-nomination for county auditor. Others being considered but not yet filed are W. D. McKay and J. F. Smart who opposed Mr. Mahlum two years ago.

PLATTE LAKE

Special—The annual social, this year a pie ala mode social, will be given by the Young People's society on Thursday of next week, August 27, at the Platte Lake church, at 8:15 o'clock. Every one is herewith cordially invited. Enjoy the evening with us. (The committee).

Last week, Monday, 10 families and friends of the Platte Lake congregation gathered at the home of Chas. Boeder for a surprise celebration, the occasion being Mrs. Boeder's birthday anniversary. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present.

We were informed that L. Magnuson is at Shakopee since the latter part of last week to take some of the famous mud-baths for his rheumatism. We are quite sure the effort will not be in vain.

Mrs. Walmark, near Sullivan Lake, is on the sick list; afflicted with a severe touch of pneumonia. We hope she will recover soon.

Frank Stefan was in Milwaukee, Wis., a few weeks ago to visit with his brother down there.

Lily Sherwood who had been home from the Cities for a two weeks vacation returned Sunday afternoon.

We rejoiced to hear that the price of cream had gone up some again.

Most of the farmers in the community have stacked their grain, and also are through haying. Other crops look good, and the pasture is better than for the last three years. We feel grateful.

Services at the Platte Lake church Sunday will be in the evening. Sunday school at 7:45 o'clock, services at 8:15 o'clock. "O come let us worship the Lord."

The ladies aid will meet at the home of Mrs. E. F. Gross next week Wednesday, August 26.

Controlling the Nile

Before the flow of the Nile river was controlled by the dam, its average rise was about 5 feet. Thirty feet meant a destructive flood, while 18 feet meant poor crops and starvation. The reservoir behind the dam assures a regulated flow and makes possible the cultivation of 6,000,000 acres that were formerly desert.

MOTL EXPLAINS HIGHWAY WORK

Engineer Who Started Good Roads Movement Here Addresses Rotarians

Motorized and other machine equipment began to replace horse drawn equipment three or four years ago said A. L. Motl, assistant maintenance engineer of the State Highway Department as he addressed the Rotary club Tuesday.

The highway department has thousands of dollars invested in machine equipment of various kinds and conducts 16 servicing stations similar to the building on Laurel street opposite the county jail.

In order to keep trunk highways open the year around the highway department has invested additional thousands of dollars in snowplows and trucks of various kinds.

It has been found that keeping the sides of the road clear will prevent the snow from drifting in the center of the highway.

Minnesota under State Commissioner Babcock early evolved the plan to build roads and to maintain them. Increasing traffic and twelve months a year service has added problems. The speaker described the method of treating frost boils which developed in the spring from layers of ice. It was soived in a simple way by shallow ditching which permitted accumulating water to flow off and not degenerate to a mud basin.

Mr. Motl paid tribute to the Minnesota Highway Patrol and said the two departments are working coordinately.

Rights of way as now secured for highways are 100 feet wide and differ from the old ones which only measured 66 feet. Highway No. 2 in passing through Brainerd will have the 100 foot right of way.

Fifteen years ago Mr. Motl came to Crow Wing county as county highway engineer. He had to hire a guide the first two weeks to find his way in the maze of criss cross roads in the country through sand ruts. Crow Wing county started its program of graded and gravelled roads with a secondary road system coming later. Mr. Motl left Brainerd in 1921 and joined the state organization when the state was undertaking to develop a 7,000 mile system.

Interesting stereopticon views were shown of road building.

President Carl Zapffe announced that officers of the ninth district will meet at Detroit Lakes Thursday and Friday.

Secretary Leigh Slipp mentioned that the Brainerd club is in the upper ten bracket being seventh in attendance in the region.

USE TEAR GAS TO SUBDUE TEMPORARILY INSANE PATIENT

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Subdued by police use of tear gas after he became temporarily crazed by the heat, Henry Balmer, 65, a visiting Le Sueur, Minn., farmer, was a patient at the Hotel Dieu hospital today.

Balmer fought off police with a knife when they attempted to take him from a boarding house room where he had barricaded himself last night. The landlord summoned the officers after hearing Balmer threaten to kill himself.

BRAINERD 25 Years Ago

August 19, 1906

What is said to be the quickest business deal in the history of Brainerd took place today. Frank Swanson, who formerly worked for Jake Omen walked into Jake's shop this afternoon and asked him what he would take for his shop. Jake stated a price and Swanson pulled out a roll and cashed in. He will take possession this evening.

Prof. Woodward has returned from St. Paul and announces that he will probably locate in Brainerd for the winter and begin his work of teaching vocal music about the first of September.

The Horseshoe restaurant, which has been closed for about two weeks will be opened as soon as Mr. West can get sufficient help. The place has been thoroughly overhauled and cleaned from top to bottom. Mr. West says this is the first time the fire has been out of the range in over four years.

In a political way: August 29 is the last date for candidates to file their intention with the county auditor. N. M. Paine will come before the people as candidate for reelection as county commissioner. Friends of Ed. Crust are urging him to enter the race with Paine. It goes without saying that Judge Sanborn, S. R. Adair, A. G. Trommald and W. A. M. Johnstone who hold the positions of probate judge, county treasurer, register of deeds and clerk of court respectively will not be disturbed, and in all probability Prof. Wilson will be the only candidate for county superintendent of schools. George McCullough and E. H. Simmons have been urged to run against Ole Erickon for sheriff. The county attorneys office give most evidence of a scramble for nomination. Judge W. A. Fleming, who has held the position before is making a canvass of the county. Judge J. H. Warner who has presided as municipal judge for the past four years is asking for the position as is also W. W. Bane, attorney. Anton Mahlum will come up for re-nomination for county auditor. Others being consideved but not yet filed are W. D. McKay and J. F. Smart who opposed Mr. Mahlum two years ago.

PLATTE LAKE

Special—The annual social, this year a pie ala mode social, will be given by the Young People's society on Thursday of next week, August 27, at the Platte Lake church, at 8:15 o'clock. Every one is herewith cordially invited. Enjoy the evening with us. (The committee).

Last week, Monday, 10 families and friends of the Platte Lake congregation gathered at the home of Chas. Boeder for a surprise celebration, the occasion being Mrs. Boeder's birthday anniversary. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by all present.

We were informed that L. Magnuson is at Shakopee since the latter part of last week to take some of the famous mud-baths for his rheumatism. We are quite sure the effort will not be in vain.

Mrs. Walmark, near Sullivan Lake, is on the sick list; afflicted with a severe touch of pneumonia. We hope she will recover soon.

Frank Stefan was in Milwaukee, Wis., a few weeks ago to visit with his brother down there.

Lily Sherwood who had been home from the Cities for a two weeks vacation returned Sunday afternoon.

We rejoiced to hear that the price of cream had gone up some again.

Most of the farmers in the community have stacked their grain, and also are through haying. Other crops look good, and the pasture is better than for the last three years. We feel grateful.

Services at the Platte Lake church Sunday will be in the evening. Sunday school at 7:45 o'clock, services at 8:15 o'clock. "O come let us worship the Lord."

The ladies aid will meet at the home of Mrs. E. F. Gross next week Wednesday, August 26.

Controlling the Nile

Before the flow of the Nile river was controlled by the dam, its average rise was about 5 feet. Thirty feet meant a destructive flood, while 18 feet meant poor crops and starvation. The reservoir behind the dam assures a regulated flow and makes possible the cultivation of 6,000,000 acres that were formerly desert.

MRS. BELLE CASE LA FOLLETTE DIES IN WASHINGTON

WAS "WISEST AND BEST COUNSELLOR" OF THE LA FOLLETTE FAMILY

STAMPED ITS LEADERSHIP ON LIBERAL POLITICAL THOUGHT OF THE NATION

Washington, Aug. 19.—(UP)—Mrs. Belle Case La Follette, "wisest and best counsellor" of the family that has dominated Wisconsin politics for a quarter of a century and stamped its leadership on liberal thought of the nation, is dead.

She was the widow of "Fighting Bob" La Follette, who from district attorney became congressman, governor, senator and finally, a year before his death in 1925, an independent presidential candidate. She was the mother of Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., youngest present member of the United States senate, and Phillip La Follette, now governor of Wisconsin.

The careers of her husband and sons were Mrs. La Follette's career. She made countless speeches for her husband in his early campaigns. She was a valued member of his political councils. She is credited with aiding greatly her sons' successful careers.

Senator La Follette and Governor La Follette were at Mrs. La Follette's bedside when she died at Georgetown hospital last night after an operation. They had arrived earlier in the day from Wisconsin, the senator making part of the trip by airplane.

Services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday from the family home on the shore of Lake Mendota at Madison, Wis.

Across the lake lies the state university, where the La Follettes met in student days, and the state capitol. Burial will be in Forest Hill cemetery, beside the grave of her husband.

Senator La Follette, Governor La Follette, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sucher, her daughter and son-in-law, will escort the body to Madison, leaving here at 4 p. m. today. The funeral party will arrive in Madison at 5:40 p. m. Thursday. Fola La Follette, the other daughter, is enroute from California and will join the party in Chicago.

Mrs. La Follette was born in a log cabin in Juneau county, Wis., April 21, 1859. She graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1879 and was married in the same year. She won the first law degree ever granted to a woman by that university. She never practiced law, but her ability was shown in an incident while her husband was district attorney.

La Follette had submitted an important brief to the supreme court. It was praised highly by Chief Justice Lyon. La Follette replied: "You make me very proud. That was written by an unknown but very able member of our bar, altogether the brainiest member of our family, Mrs. La Follette."

In her husband's campaigns, Mrs. La Follette proved her ability as a public speaker, addressing voters from street corners or the back seat of an automobile.

She was an active campaigner, too, for women's suffrage and the cause of peace. In 1914 she made 60 consecutive speeches in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. And in 1917 she bore her head high when most of the nation turned on her husband for opposing the United States' entrance into the world war.

"She is my wisest and best counsellor," La Follette wrote in his autobiography. "Her grasp of the great problems, social and economic, is unsurpassed by any of the strong men who have been associated with me in my work."

After her husband's death in 1925, Mrs. La Follette undoubtedly could have succeeded to his place and have become the first woman senator. But she rejected that honor to help her oldest son win the post.

WHITEMANS ON THEIR HONEYMOON

Denver, Colo., Aug. 19.—(UP)—Paul Whiteman started his fourth honeymoon today with his new bride, the red haired Margret Livingston.

The rotund king of jazz was married yesterday at the home of his parents—a home he had given them—before an altar formed by baskets of flowers from the garden.

The ceremony was brief, with only members of the immediate family of the bridegroom and his motion picture actress bride in attendance.

Finally Miss Livingston arrived, 23 minutes late. She had been so involved in preparations for the wedding she had failed to notice the time, she said.

They will honeymoon here for several days, and then go back to Chicago where the leader's orchestra is playing.

Satin by Day and Satin by Night

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

AS TO the fabric which is outstanding at the present moment, it is satin by day and satin by night, which reigns supreme in the mode. The style-wise woman who is seeking to replenish her midseason wardrobe or planning her fall costumes will, if she has not already done so, discover that there is simply no getting away from satin either for sports wear or the formal evening gown or for the popular pajama fashions.

Notwithstanding its aspect of luxury, satin, whether it be white or in pastel colors, owing to the fact that it tubs perfectly, has proven conclusively that it is as practical as it is chic for the making of the sports costume. Which accounts for the enthusiasm with which fashion's followers are turning satinward this season.

Just now it is the sleeveless white or pastel satin tailleur which is making definite appeal. The model to the right in the illustration is typical. Details which intrigue in the styling of this attractive sports suit are square revers, big buttons and a belted waistline for the blouse with a generous pleating giving a proper flare to the skirt.

In many instances the mode is varied with a cunning cape arrangement to take the place of sleeves. The very latest satin sports frocks are intricately seamed after the manner which has so successfully entered into the designing of the evening satin frock.

Later on, and now for that matter, the suit or afternoon frock of black satin will become the theme paramount. If not black then brown satin will be first choice, for fashion reports are already placing emphasis on brown for fall. Softly tailored effects distinguish the very smart and very wearable costume pictured to the left. This five o'clock ensemble which is of black crepe satin endorses the jacket-suit styling, with draped collar of self-satin. The blouse is of pale pink triple chiffon.

As to satin for the evening frock word from Paris, as in fact from all style centers, reassures as to a continuance of its triumphs. We are showing in the miniature panel at the top a lovely formal gown made of rose-ivory satin. The neckline of this charming dress subscribes to the vogue which calls for softly tied bows. These bows which are so casually tied are made a feature throughout the styling of satin modes whether they be "sportsy" or ultra formal.

After you have indulged in a satin sports frock, a satin afternoon dress and a satin for formals, you will be liking satin so well by that time the urge for a satin pajama ensemble will likely follow. The vogue of pajamas for formal evening wear is interpreted in alabaster crepe satin as shown in the other tiny panel. Curved seamings suggest an empire silhouette in the bodice. Shaped inserts in the wide trousers contribute a graceful fullness below the molded hipline. The girdle tied about the modish jacket foretells a trend to short-waist empire lines which seem imminent for fall and winter.

Tombstone Falls on Playing Child

Newton, Kan.—Susan Lorraine Biggerstaff, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Biggerstaff, was injured while playing in the cemetery at Zimmerdale, Kan.

The little girl was jumping from one tombstone to another. She leaped upon one which was insecurely set. If fell with her. The child's leg was broken.

Feminine Realism

The only place where the fair sex is invariably hard-set in countenance and earnest in expression is the frontage of a milliner's shop.—Nineteenth Century and After.

Cottons Hold Their Own With Silks and Satins

If you ever had an idea that cotton materials were in any way inferior to silks and satins, you will have to revise your opinion this summer. Sheer fabrics such as organdie, plain or embroidered batiste, and dotted swiss are used not only for informal evening dresses but for those of the more formal sort. • June bridesmaids will wear pastel-toned organdie dresses, and brides will wear fine embroidered batiste. Usually these lighter, sheer cotton materials are worn over taffeta or silk crepe slips, taffeta being the smartest choice for evening; but you may prefer a slip or petticoat of tulle or batiste trimmed with lace edging and insertion.

COFFEE VARIES IN FLAVOR IF ROAST IS "HIGH" OR "LOW"

Hills Bros. Overcome This Variation by Their Patented Process—Controlled Roasting

There is no way to know when a big batch of coffee is perfectly roasted. One batch may be "high," another "low," with the result that there is variation of flavor.

Hills Bros. overcome this uncertainty, with their radically different and exclusive process — Controlled Roasting. As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . . a little at a time . . . so the uniform flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by this patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time. Positive control of heat develops every berry to perfection — to the degree that insures a rich, full-bodied, unvarying flavor in every pound.

No other coffee tastes like Hills Bros. Coffee because no other coffee is roasted the same way. Controlled Roasting is Hills Bros.' own process.

Hills Bros. Coffee is packed in vacuum cans that keep it ever-fresh. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed from cans and kept out. Coffee packed in ordinary cans, even if "air-tight," does not stay fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

MRS. BELLE CASE LA FOLLETTE DIES IN WASHINGTON

WAS "WISEST AND BEST COUNSELLOR" OF THE LA FOLLETTE FAMILY

STAMPED ITS LEADERSHIP ON LIBERAL POLITICAL THOUGHT OF THE NATION

Washington, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Mrs. Belle Case La Follette, "wisest and best counsellor" of the family that has dominated Wisconsin politics for a quarter of a century and stamped its leadership on liberal thought of the nation, is dead.

She was the widow of "Fighting Bob" La Follette, who from district attorney became congressman, governor, senator and finally, a year before his death in 1925, an independent presidential candidate. She was the mother of Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., youngest present member of the United States senate, and Phillip La Follette, now governor of Wisconsin.

The careers of her husband and sons were Mrs. La Follette's career. She made countless speeches for her husband in his early campaigns. She was a valued member of his political councils. She is credited with aiding greatly her sons' successful careers.

Senator La Follette and Governor La Follette were at Mrs. La Follette's bedside when she died at Georgetown hospital last night after an operation. They had arrived earlier in the day from Wisconsin, the senator making part of the trip by airplane.

Services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Friday from the family home on the shore of Lake Mendota at Madison, Wis.

Across the lake lies the state university, where the La Follettes met in student days, and the state capitol. Burial will be in Forest Hill cemetery, beside the grave of her husband.

Senator La Follette, Governor La Follette, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sucher, her daughter and son-in-law, will escort the body to Madison, leaving here at 4 p. m. today. The funeral party will arrive in Madison at 5:40 p. m. Thursday. Fola La Follette, the other daughter, is enroute from California and will join the party in Chicago.

Mrs. La Follette was born in a log cabin in Juneau county, Wis., April 21, 1859. She graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1879 and was married in the same year. She won the first law degree ever granted to a woman by that university. She never practiced law, but her ability was shown in an incident while her husband was district attorney.

La Follette had submitted an important brief to the supreme court. It was praised highly by Chief Justice Lyon. La Follette replied: "You make me very proud. That was written by an unknown but very able member of our bar, altogether the brainiest member of our family, Mrs. La Follette."

In her husband's campaigns, Mrs. La Follette proved her ability as a public speaker, addressing voters from street corners or the back seat of an automobile.

She was an active campaigner, too, for women's suffrage and the cause of peace. In 1914 she made 60 consecutive speeches in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. And in 1917 she bore her head high when most of the nation turned on her husband for opposing the United States' entrance into the world war.

"She is my wisest and best counsellor," La Follette wrote in his autobiography. "Her grasp of the great problems, social and economic, is unsurpassed by any of the strong men who have been associated with me in my work."

After her husband's death in 1925, Mrs. La Follette undoubtedly could have succeeded to his place and have become the first woman senator. But she rejected that honor to help her oldest son win the post.

WHITEMANS ON THEIR HONEYMOON

Denver, Colo., Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Paul Whiteman started his fourth honeymoon today with his new bride, the red haired Margret Livingston.

The rotund king of jazz was married yesterday at the home of his parents—a home he had given them—before an altar formed by baskets of flowers from the garden.

The ceremony was brief, with only members of the immediate family of the bridegroom and his motion picture actress bride in attendance.

Finally Miss Livingston arrived, 23 minutes late. She had been so involved in preparations for the wedding she had failed to notice the time, she said.

They will honeymoon here for several days, and then go back to Chicago where the leader's orchestra is playing.

Study Your State's Traffic Act

MINNESOTA motorists planning trips to other states will do well to study and observe the Minnesota traffic act, says a State Highway bulletin. Most of the important provisions in this act are also the law in a majority of other states, and all of them are good safety rules both at home and abroad.

Passing other cars on hills or curves where the view is obscured, coasting with gears in neutral, parking on the traveled portion of a highway, and passing street cars on the left, are outlawed in nearly all states, including Minnesota. Passing street cars taking or discharging passengers is also under almost universal ban, but many, like Minnesota, permit passing at safety zones.

A signal for left turns is required almost everywhere. A few places still require a different signal for a right turn, but most states, like Minnesota, specify only one signal, the arm extended (or an adequate mechanical signal), when stopping, starting, or turning in a manner which may affect other vehicles. This means that a right turn, from the right lane, not affecting other vehicles, requires no signal.

The hit-and-run driver who fails to stop when involved in an accident is an outlaw everywhere. Every state, according to data collected by the American Automobile association, requires the driver, whether the accident involves personal injury or property damage alone, to give his name and other information to the occupants of the other car. Some states require a formal report to the police in every accident involving personal injury. Minnesota requires such a report only when the persons injured are incapable of receiving the report.

Minnesota and 23 other states ban windshield stickers, except official permits. Ten states require full stop for all road crossings, and six, including Minnesota, require stops at marked crossings. Law or no law, it is a good rule to stop at all crossings where the view is obscured.

Fifteen states require dimming lights when meeting cars. The Minnesota law simply requires that the beam of light be focused and pointed downward to illuminate the road and not dazzle drivers of approaching cars. Five states ban the use of spotlights. Most states which permit their use have a law similar to the Minnesota rule, which prohibits pointing the beam to the left or the center of the road, or more than 100 feet ahead.

The motorist who has complied with the laws of his own state as regards registration and driver's license, is usually safe in other states. Two states, Colorado and Oregon, require a permit when the car enters the state, Washington requires a permit within 48 hours, Montana within seven days, and several states, including Minnesota, within ten days. California, Kansas and Maine require all visitors to have a driver's license.

The greatest variation is in speed regulations. Fourteen states have discarded fixed speed limits, while others vary from 25 to 50. It is best, says the bulletin, to learn the speed laws in states you wish to visit. The next best thing is to maintain the speed of the average vehicle wherever you happen to be.

One rule that is a good rule everywhere is to "Keep your car under such control that it can always be stopped in the clear space ahead."

Plea to Preserve North Woods

ALONG the highways of northern Minnesota the State Forest Service has posted 3,000 Indian tepee-shaped signs.

The signs are a plea to the travelers and the citizens of the community to do their part in the preservation of the North Woods. The destruction, both by repeated fires and extensive logging has reduced the productivity of the 20,000,000 acres and created a serious condition.

The depletion of the forests has forced lumber concerns to import from 75 to 80 per cent of the lumber sold from the town lumber yard. The people who buy lumber are paying over $30,000,000 a year in freight.

The destruction of forests has taken from the forest game animals and fur bearers the natural conditions which they must have to live and propagate. The depletion of game and fish has been the result of destroying the forests and waters more than the amount which the hunters and fishermen take.

The tourist business is built up entirely on the attractive scenery and lakes. Forest denudation not only destroys scenery but also has indirect effects upon water supplies which in turn controls lake and stream flow and levels.

The Forest Service "Tepee" sign reminds the people of all of these uses and benefits from the forests. It is the people who suffer when forests burn, and they pay the costs and losses of forest destruction.

The message of the sign is "Protect the forest from every kind of destruction."

World is Ungrateful at Times

THE world is decidedly ungrateful at times. A man may have made a good civilian record in welfare work, but upon entering politics, that is often forgotten and he is criticized and condemned and the public forgets whatever good he had previously accomplished.

The man of the hour may be forgotten in brief time. The average mind drops him as completely as it does a record of the vice presidents of our country.

To live in the hearts of one's countrymen requires ability possessed only by one of Washington or Lincoln stature.

Many a man's work of the present day is not judged correctly until posterity gainst a dispassionate view. But the individual who is so honored has long passed away and cannot see the laurel wreath conferred.

Watching the Other Fellow Drive

MOTORING these days exacts the utmost vigilance on the part of a driver engaged in a long tour. It is supposed, of course, that the driver is obeying the rules of traffic and proper car driving.

But the vigilance must extend and include the other fellow on the road. This point is well illustrated in the experiences of Judge L. B. Kinder, of the probate court. They had four exciting experiences in their trip to Glacier Park and the Canadian Rocky Mountain Park at Banff. Two of these related to drivers who weaved in and out and endangered cars to the front and rear.

PAUL WHITEMAN, eminent exponent of jazz music, has been married a fourth time. Evidently Mendelssohn's wedding march is getting to be a familiar tune.

Jogalong Tales

CHAPTER 2

By the time he finished speaking he had reached the other end of the tunnel. He turned and waved frantically to the boy to hurry.

"Isn't it sunny?" he asked.

"But, good gracious, what is that?"

"That's what I hurried you to see," said the Jogalong. "That is the Ant's new summer estate."

"I think it looks more like a sand pile than anything else," said the boy.

"I hope you won't let any of the Ants hear you say that, Boy. A sand pile, indeed! We shall see. Please step lightly because the children may be asleep and walking over their heads is likely to disturb them."

Very lightly the boy and the Jogalong walked up to the Ants' new summer estate. They didn't find any door, but instead of looking around the edge for one, the Jogalong started to climb.

"Be careful, Boy," said the Jogalong. "When you enter the house be sure to pay some homage to the queen. She is the most important member of the household. And please don't ask them to show you over the whole establishment. The whole house is so tremendously large. There are many rooms, some of them way down underground and it would take us too long to visit them all. Sometimes they make so many rooms and make them so deep that their houses extend under the beds of rivers."

They began to climb down, down, until they reached the queen's favorite parlor. She was particularly busy but was polite enough to acknowledge her visitors by slight wiggles of her feelers. The Jogalong and the boy passed on into the next room, for they did not wish to disturb her. Here the nurses were busy with the babies who were beginning to grow from funny little grub bodies to real ants. The nurses were helping them to unfold and dry their new legs and wings. It was a very difficult thing to do. They had to devote the most careful attention every minute. Sometimes they talked with each other.

"Oh, not in the same way we do," said the Jogalong, "but by rubbing their feelers together."

They all seemed to be hard workers. Hundreds of them were scurrying about, some cleaning house, others feeding the queen, some bringing in food and others caring for the young.

"What do they like to eat?" asked the boy.

"They like many different kinds of food which they find in the grass and under rocks, but they like the food their cows give them the best."

The boy laughed. "Oh, how silly!" he said. "Ant cows! Whoever heard of such creatures?"

Now it is too bad that he laughed so quickly, for things that are funny to some are not in the least funny to others and, as it happened, the Jogalong was quite right. The ants are very fond of the sweet honey dew which their small white cows give them and though these strange creatures are nothing at all like our cows, they are led to pasture on young leaves much as real cows are to the green fields. The ants who care for them watch the leaves upon which they feed and when the leaf begins to lose its sweetness, the cow or what looks to others like a small white grub, is carried to another.

Just as he turned to climb out of the ants' house, a dreadful thing happened. Great heaps of sand came tumbling down upon their heads.

Some careless one these letters leaves
As disconnected as you please.
Do you, if chance you think you can,
Give them their order and their plan.

The Centipede and Me

Now what in the world can a centipede do
With one hundred legs, when I've only two?

I sometimes do manage to trip one of mine,
Does he do the same with his whole ninety-nine?

My Mother says, "Gracious, your shoes are not neat!"
But what would she say if I'd one hundred feet?

My two muddy shoes leave their prints on the rugs—
It's fine I'm not one of those centipede bugs!

If I find it hard to tell left foot from right
Oh dear me! Just think of the centipede's plight!

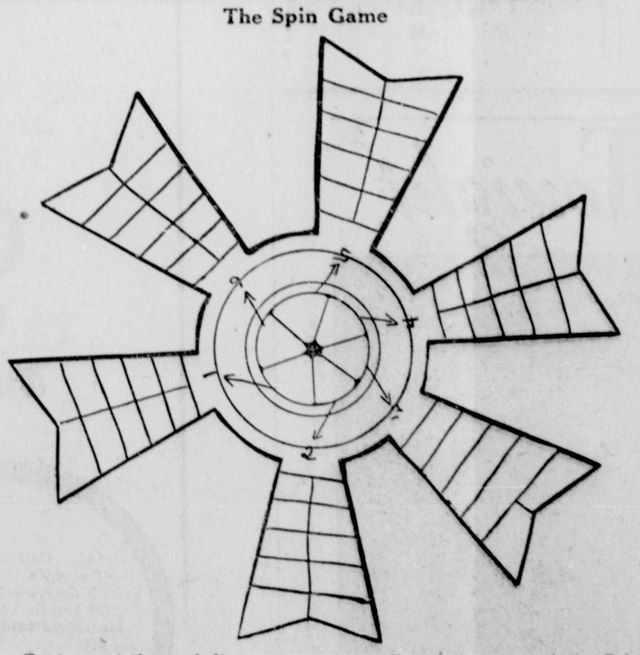

And isn't it lucky when time comes to eat
That I have two hands instead of just feet?

So Centipede, you have hundreds or more
If I did, I'd never know what they were for.

First mount the card diagram on some cardboard to make it last. Take small pearl buttons and paint them different colors. These are your men. Six players can be in the game. Place one man on each little section in the center and shake up six numbers, each player choosing one. The player who gets number one takes aisle one on the diagram and so on. Each aisle has the same number of spaces on it. Player number one plays first, shaking a pair of dice to find out the number of spaces he may move. Each player then does the same in turn and the player going down one side of his aisle and up the other first, coming back into the center with a throw of one, wins. The last throw must be a one or the player must lose his turn and wait until he does throw one.

Controlling the Nile

Before the flow of the Nile river was controlled by the dam, its average rise was about 5 feet. Thirty feet meant a destructive flood, while 18 feet meant poor crops and starvation. The reservoir behind the dam assures a regulated flow and makes possible the cultivation of 6,000,000 acres that were formerly desert.

Gap Famous in History

Snickers gap is famous because it was through it during the Civil war that the Army of the Shenandoah marched on Richmond. The gap marks the abandoned course of a small stream. Through what is known as stream piracy, the head waters of Beaver creek were stolen by the Shenandoah river.

Controlling the Nile

Before the flow of the Nile river was controlled by the dam, its average rise was about 5 feet. Thirty feet meant a destructive flood, while 18 feet meant poor crops and starvation. The reservoir behind the dam assures a regulated flow and makes possible the cultivation of 6,000,000 acres that were formerly desert.

PLAY SET FOR 3 DAYS, AUGUST 28, 29 AND 30

8TH ANNUAL EVENT WILL BRING TOGETHER FOREMOST GOLFERS OF STATE

QUALIFYING ROUNDS FRIDAY, AUG. 28, MATCH PLAY SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

While Lester Bolstad, Minnesota's diminutive golfing wizard, is seeking honors in the National Open Golf meet at Chicago, the outstanding golfers of Minnesota will gather at Breezy Point on August 28, 29 and 30 to vie for the right to succeed him as the 10,000 Lakes champion. This year's tournament at Breezy Point will mark the eighth annual 10,000 Lakes meet and will bring together an array of the foremost golfers of the state. Qualifying rounds will be staged on Friday, August 28, with the match play scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, climaxed by the championship round on Sunday afternoon.

Early entries received to date by Herbert Crummy, professional at the Breezy Point course, indicate that the field of golfers will surpass those of previous years in both number and prestige. Among the early entrants who have signified their intentions of seeking Bolstad's crown are: Jake Wetherby, Minneapolis Club, runner-up in last year's meet; Rudy Juran, Golden Valley; Allan Labatt and Doc Matchan, Country Club; Dick Putnam, Dan Davenport, George Dauphine, Carl Coleman and Earl McKenzie of the Minneapolis Club; Lawrence Carpenter, Lynn Johnson and Lee Herron, Interlachen; Don Burris, Golden Valley. Among the entrants from the southern part of the state are Sid Kinyon and Dr. H. A. Northrop of Owatonna.

The field in the women's division will be headed by Mrs. Ralph Little, winner of the championship honors in five of the past eight years. Mrs. Little is one of the premier women golfers in the state, having won the state championship in 1928. In the annual Minneapolis golf meet staged this July, Mrs. Little reached the semi-finals. Other women entrants include Mrs. A. W. Clapp, Town and Country; Miss Mary Paper, Northwood; Mrs. A. A. Huston and Mrs. Carl Coleman, Minneapolis Club; and Mrs. Oren Safford of Minnikahda.

The condition of the course is the best in many years. Hazards are in good shape too, and the course promises to bring out play which is of the highest type. Competition will be keen and large galleries are expected.

A Brainerd entry expected is Joe Ryan who made such a wonderful record in the second annual Pine Beach tournament, which he played in par on his first 36 holes of championship play. Other members of the Brainerd Country Club are expected to enter too.

Prizes include men's qualifying prize, championship in men's division, runner-up in championship flight, winner of first flight, runner-up first flight, winner second flight, winner third flight.

A corresponding group of seven prizes is offered in the women's division.

Former champions in 10,000 Lakes tournament play are as follows:

Men—1924, R. C. Lilly; 1925, Lester Bolstad; 1926, Art Tveraa; 1927, Harry Legg; 1928, Harry Legg; 1929, Roscoe Fawcett; 1930, Lester Bolstad.

WANT McLARNIN TO SLUG IT OUT WITH PETROLLE

CUSTOMERS WANT A BLOODY FIGHT TOMORROW NIGHT

McLARNIN EXPECTS TO JAB THE FARGO BOY GROGGY, USING RIGHT

PETROLLE REPORTS HIS WEIGHT AT 140; McLARNIN SCALES ABOUT 148

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Aug. 19.—It is amazing how reckless your average fight fan is with somebody else's countenance.

This willingness to bear up bravely while another guy's chin, nose and stomach are being cracked high, wide and handsome, never was better illustrated than in the customer's demands that Jimmy McLarnin forget all about boxing in his bout with Billy Petrolle at the stadium tomorrow night, and slug it out from the bell.

The customers, stout-hearted to a fault, have expressed themselves as perfectly willing to have James' nose flattened and his ears pinned back, if only James will make an open scrap of it.

Such bravery, such willingness to absorb punishment, is, of course, highly commendable. But it is very unlikely that McLarnin will give the boys and girls a chance to display their fortitude. Of course, it would make for an elegant brawl if he did, but the little Vancouver Irishman has brains, and brains and recklessness are not sorority sisters.

Jimmy, unless he makes a last minute change in plans, will employ the same tactics tomorrow night as he did in whipping Petrolle here a few months back. That is, he will jab the Fargo boy groggy, flinging his dynamite right hand only when he is sure he can't miss.

Such a safe and sane program is certain to cost the Vancouver Bomber votes in the next popularity contest, but Jimmy would be crazy if he fought Petrolle in any other fashion. It was quite right and proper for Jimmy to wade into Petrolle the first time they met, for he didn't know of the tremendous kick that rode in Billy's dangling left arm. But, if picking himself off the floor no less than nine times that night did not teach him that discretion is the better part of valor, then—well, his intelligence is less than Dazzy Vance's batting average.

Jack Hurley, Petrolle's astute manager, knows full well that his boy's chief hope of victory lies in McLarnin's coming out there in the middle of the ring and swapping punches. If Hurley doesn't know this, then why on earth did he attempt to get McLarnin mad by calling him everything from a bum to a quitter?

You never could convince us that Hurley, a man with his full share of brains, is sincere in calling McLarnin yellow. A man has to have plenty of what it takes to get up and keep coming in as McLarnin did in his first shot at Petrolle. Baby Face was up and down like an elevator in that scrap but he was still swinging away at the end.

McLarnin is expected to have a three-pound weight pull over Petrolle. Petrolle reported his weight today as 140 pounds while McLarnin scaled slightly above 148 pounds when he completed training.

Betting on the bout is extremely light despite the popularity of the two fighters with McLarnin quoted as a 6 to 5 favorite. The light betting and unexpectedly small advance ticket sale is thought to be due to uncertainty regarding McLarnin's tactics.

SOUTH SIDE GETS ANOTHER CHANCE TO WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

DEFEAT OF NORTHEAST PERMITS TEAM TO REPLAY TIE GAME WITH Y. M. C. A.

ONE THOUSAND FANS WITNESS EXCITING 4-3 GAME LAST EVENING

Observed as the most exciting game of the season, the South Side baseball team nosed out Northeast 4 to 3 last evening to better their chances and continue their upward climb for the second half city championship.

Had Northeast won, the championship would have been theirs. South Side must now play off a tie game with Y. M. C. A. Defeat then will give Northeast the championship. A win will advance them to a virtual tie for the honors and the two teams will clash again to determine the top-notcher.

Swanson started the excitement by singling with one man down and going to second on a fumble of Bush's grounder. Loom followed with a single and Hanson brought Swanson in on a long fly to right field. Northeast tied the score in the second inning when Skiba got life on an error and advanced to third on Swanson's double to right. Bedal's grounder got past Franks and Skiba came home.

In the first play of the third inning Nutting walked, stole second, went to third on an error and scored by sliding at home plate.

South Side scored the winning run in the fifth, Hanson bringing home Bush.

Franks pitched his usual good game, allowing only three hits, walking one man while Jarbo was touched for five hits and walked three men.

The attendance was estimated at 1,600 fans.

SAINTS TAKE GAME FROM INDIANAPOLIS 14 TO 7 YESTERDAY

Seven Louisville pitchers failed to stop the slaughter in a double-header, in which Minneapolis took a twin victory, 10 to 8 and 17 to 4. Ruble and McGowan of Minneapolis and Herman and Ganzel of Louisville collected homers.

Claude Jonnard pitched a 5-hit game and knocked a home run to help Milwaukee take an 8 to 2 victory over Columbus.

The lowly Toledo club, undisputed tenant of the cellar, administered a 7 to 5 kick to Kansas City, up in third place. The Blues did their best with a ninth-inning rally, and got all their runs in that frame, but the odds were too great.

CHICAGO CUBS INVADE N. Y. IN CRUCIAL SERIES

EIGHT DAYS' VISIT EXPECTED TO HAVE BEARING ON CUBS' FINAL STANDINGS

ARE TRYING TO PLACE IN 1931 NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT RACE

By L. S. CAMERON
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 19.—Rogers Hornsby led his Chicago Cubs into New York today for an eight-day visit which is expected to determine the Cubs' final standings in the 1931 National League pennant race.

Trailing the St. Louis Cardinals by nine full games, the Cubs must make a clean sweep of their 11 games against Brooklyn and New York if they hope to overtake the leaders.

A 3 to 2 defeat by Boston yesterday cut the Cubs' lead over New York to .002 points. Fred Frankhouse allowed the Cubs only five hits and won out when Worthington singled with the bases filled in the ninth.

Chuck Klein, Phillies outfielder, hit his 28th and 29th homers of the season off Spencer of Pittsburgh, but the other Phillies batsmen were inoffensive and Pittsburgh won, 14 to 5. Paul Waner led the Pittsburgh attack with five hits in six times at bat.

No other games were scheduled in the National League and only two were staged in the American circuit, Detroit defeating New York 5 to 4 in 11 innings and St. Louis whipping Washington, 4 to 2.

Charley Gehringer led Detroit to victory, starting the Tigers' three-run rally in the fourth, driving in the tieing run in the ninth and batting home the winning run in the eleventh.

Dick Coffman pitched nine-hit ball in defeating Washington for his third successive victory.

JACK (KID) BERG TO MEET CANZONERI IN NEW YORK SEPT. 10

New York, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Jack (Kid) Berg of England will have his second opportunity in five months to win the world's lightweight championship when he meets Champion Tony Canzoneri at the Pala grounds, Sept. 10.

Articles for the 15-round bout were signed yesterday and the match was approved by the New York state athletic commission.

Habits of Moths

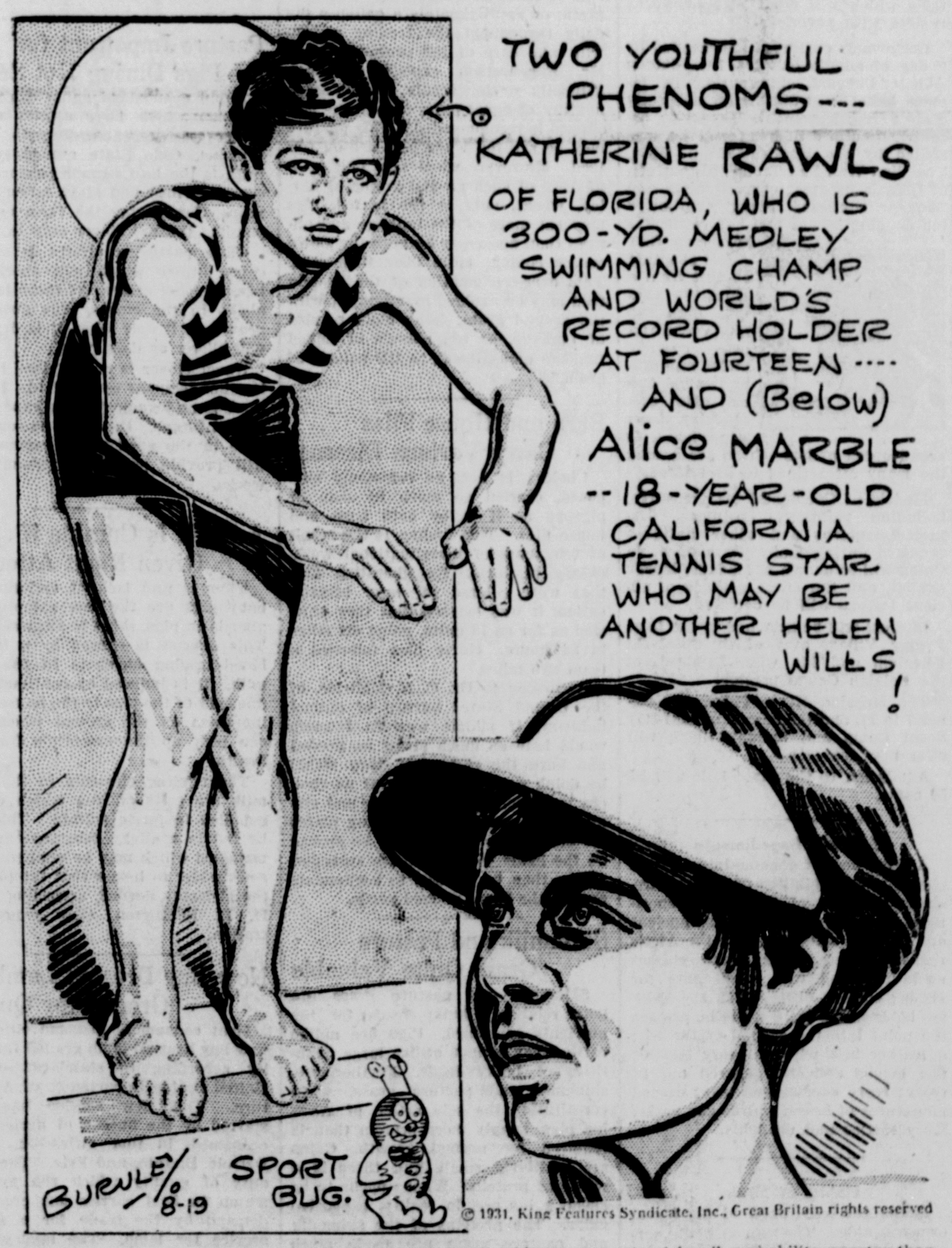

Moths eat only when in the larval or worm stage. The winged moth never eats, for its mouth is not made for eating. One winged or adult moth in an experiment lived for 77 days without eating. The male moth lives nearly twice as long as the female.

Queen of Dances

The waltz is said to be the most famous and consistently popular dance in all history. The origin of the waltz is obscured in the dim past. In its modern guise it appeared in 1780, and "Ach du lieber Augustin" is said to be the first tune to which the waltz was danced.

Coming Champions

THE veterans of sport have been so much in the limelight this year one gets the impression that there are not so many brilliant youngsters flashing to the fore in 1931.

This is misleading, however. There are quite a number of sensational young performers in the sport world today. As a matter of fact there are some very young youngsters who have recently been breaking into the headlines. Katherine Rawls, fourteen-year-old swimming sensation from Hollywood, Fla., and Alice Marble, California's 18-year-old tennis meteor, are two of the youngest and best of the new generation of sport stars.

The most astounding performance of the women's national swimming championships was undoubtedly furnished by the diminutive Miss Rawls. That bobbed-haired boyish-looking 90-pounder from the land of the orange blossoms created a sensation by decisively defeating Eleanor Holm in the 300-meter medley at New York in July. She not only won the national title in this event, but broke a world's record of three years' standing by more than four seconds, and then went on to win a very noteworthy second place behind Georgia Coleman in the fancy diving championship.

Alice Marble, the young tennis marvel, has come out of California as the most highly touted net star in years. In the opinion of a goodly number of qualified critics she is destined to become the successor to Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, and in all probability greater than the Helen of the courts, because her game is of much wider range.

This girl who, according to no less an expert than Howard Kinsey, has the service and smash that made Maurice McLoughlin famous, swept through the tournaments out in the Golden West like a cyclone.

In her first appearance in the East, in the Seabright tourney, Miss Marble was eliminated by Mrs. A. J. Lamme, but her showing was thoroughly impressive in view of the fact that she was totally unfamiliar with the turf lawn tennis courts, and was handicapped accordingly. A girl of Junoesque stature, undoubtedly Miss Marble is all that has been said of her. You will hear more of her.

IN speaking of all those glorious sport veterans who are defying Father Time, the fans are liable to overlook the fact that one of the most remarkable of old-timers is an equine "athlete"—the famous Kilmer thoroughbred, Sun Beau.

Although 6 years old, Sun Beau is as sound as a rock. The way things look at present, it seems possible that this wonderful horse, the largest money winner in the history of racing, will reach the half million mark before he is through. When he won the Arlington Cup late in July, the purse of $19,400 brought his total to $302,844.

This put hmi in third place, behind Gallant Fox and Zev. Then his great victory in the Arlington Handicap catapulted him to the top, with a grand total of $330,044.

Sun Beau has several more important engagements this Summer, and it is likely he will be campaigned through the Fall season at Maryland. If he retains his Arlington form he should have little difficulty winning a great deal more in stakes and purses.

It was Mr. Kilmer's original intention to retire Beau last Autumn, but the famous horse was so good that he decided to send him west for the $100,000 Agua Caliente Handicap and retire him to the stud immediately after the victory. However, Mike Hall won the rich stake, and Sun Beau was beaten off, so Mr. Kilmer changed his plans. He kept the famous son of Sun Briar and Beautiful Lady in training, and the old fellow seems to improve with age. His Arlington Cup victory was the best race of his career, establishing a new track record of 2:01 4-5 for a mile and a quarter while easily defeating the best handicap horses in the West.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer has unbounded faith in his horse, believes he is the greatest thoroughbred of all ages in the world, and that because of Sun Beau's quality, he is entitled to roll up an unbeatable record as the largest money winner of all time. And turf fans are rooting for the big horse to reach his goal—the half-million mark this time!

McLarnin is expected to have a three-pound weight pull over Petrolle. Petrolle reported his weight today as 140 pounds while McLarnin scaled slightly above 148 pounds when he completed training.

Betting on the bout is extremely light despite the popularity of the two fighters with McLarnin quoted as a 6 to 5 favorite. The light betting and unexpectedly small advance ticket sale is thought to be due to uncertainty regarding McLarnin's tactics.

SOUTH SIDE GETS ANOTHER CHANCE TO WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

DEFEAT OF NORTHEAST PERMITS TEAM TO REPLAY TIE GAME WITH Y. M. C. A.

ONE THOUSAND FANS WITNESS EXCITING 4-3 GAME LAST EVENING

Observed as the most exciting game of the season, the South Side baseball team nosed out Northeast 4 to 3 last evening to better their chances and continue their upward climb for the second half city championship.

Had Northeast won, the championship would have been theirs. South Side must now play off a tie game with Y. M. C. A. Defeat then will give Northeast the championship. A win will advance them to a virtual tie for the honors and the two teams will clash again to determine the top-notcher.

Swanson started the excitement by singling with one man down and going to second on a fumble of Bush's grounder. Loom followed with a bingle and Hanson brought Swanson in on a long fly to right field. Northeast tied the score in the second inning when Skiba got life on an error and advanced to third on Swanson's double to right. Bedal's grounder got past Franks and Skiba came home.

In the first play of the third inning Nutting walked, stole second, went to third on an error and scored by sliding at home plate.

South Side scored the winning run in the fifth, Hanson bringing home Bush.

Franks pitched his usual good game, allowing only three hits, walking one man while Jarbo was touched for five hits and walked three men.

The attendance was estimated at 1,600 fans.

CHARITY GAME OF CUBS, SOX SETTLED BY TOP OF A COIN

Chicago, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Site of the charity game between the Chicago Cubs and White Sox September 9 was to be settled by a toss of the coin today. William Veeck, Cubs president, and Harry Grabiner, White Sox secretary, were to meet with Commissioner K. M. Landis to determine where the contest would be held, at Comiskey park with its seating capacity of 60,000 or Wrigley field which seats only 45,000.

CATCHER ANGLEY PLAYS WHALE OF GAME TUESDAY

KNOCKS OUT 2 HOME RUNS, BUT COULD NOT WIN GAME BY HIMSELF

SAINTS TAKE GAME FROM INDIANAPOLIS 14 TO 7 YESTERDAY

Catcher Angley of Indianapolis did the best that he could by his team and knocked out two home runs, but he couldn't win the game by himself and had to see the Indians drop still further behind Saint Paul, the American Association leaders. The Saints took the game, 14 to 7.

Seven Louisville pitchers failed to stop the slaughter in a double-header, in which Minneapolis took a twin victory, 10 to 8 and 17 to 4. Ruble and McGowan of Minneapolis and Herman and Ganzel of Louisville collected homers.

Claude Jonnard pitched a 5-hit game and knocked a home run to help Milwaukee take an 8 to 2 victory over Columbus.

The lowly Toledo club, undisputed tenant of the cellar, administered a 7 to 5 kick to Kansas City, up in third place. The Blues did their best with a ninth-inning rally, and got all their runs in that frame, but the odds were too great.

Coming Champions

THE veterans of sport have been so much in the limelight this year one gets the impression that there are not so many brilliant youngsters flashing to the fore in 1931.

This is misleading, however. There are quite a number of sensational young performers in the sport world today. As a matter of fact there are some very young youngsters who have recently been breaking into the headlines. Katherine Rawls, fourteen-year-old swimming sensation from Hollywood, Fla., and Alice Marble, California's 18-year-old tennis meteor, are two of the youngest and best of the new generation of sport stars.

The most astounding performance of the women's national swimming championships was undoubtedly furnished by the diminutive Miss Rawls. That bobbed-haired boyish-looking 90-pounder from the land of the orange blossoms created a sensation by decisively defeating Eleanor Holm in the 300-meter medley at New York in July. She not only won the national title in this event, but broke a world's record of three years' standing by more than four seconds, and then went on to win a very noteworthy second place behind Georgia Coleman in the fancy diving championship.

Alice Marble, the young tennis marvel, has come out of California as the most highly touted net star in years. In the opinion of a goodly number of qualified critics she is destined to become the successor to Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, and in all probability greater than the Helen of the courts, because her game is of much wider range.

This girl who, according to no less an expert than Howard Kinsey, has the service and smash that made Maurice McLoughlin famous, swept through the tournaments out in the Golden West like a cyclone.

In her first appearance in the East, in the Seabright tourney, Miss Marble was eliminated by Mrs. A. J. Lamme, but her showing was thoroughly impressive in view of the fact that she was totally unfamiliar with the turf lawn tennis courts, and was handicapped accordingly. A girl of Junoesque stature, undoubtedly Miss Marble is all that has been said of her. You will hear more of her.

CHICAGO CUBS INVADE N. Y. IN CRUCIAL SERIES

EIGHT DAYS' VISIT EXPECTED TO HAVE BEARING ON CUBS' FINAL STANDINGS

ARE TRYING TO PLACE IN 1931 NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT RACE

By L. S. CAMERON
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Aug. 19.—Rogers Hornsby led his Chicago Cubs into New York today for an eight-day visit which is expected to determine the Cubs' final standings in the 1931 National League pennant race.

Trailing the St. Louis Cardinals by nine full games, the Cubs must make a clean sweep of their 11 games against Brooklyn and New York if they hope to overtake the leaders.

A 3 to 2 defeat by Boston yesterday cut the Cubs' lead over New York to .002 points. Fred Frankhouse allowed the Cubs only five hits and won out when Worthington singled with the bases filled in the ninth.

Chuck Klein, Phillies outfielder, hit his 28th and 29th homers of the season off Spencer of Pittsburgh, but the other Phillies batsmen were inoffensive and Pittsburgh won, 14 to 5. Paul Waner led the Pittsburgh attack with five hits in six times at bat.

No other games were scheduled in the National League and only two were staged in the American circuit, Detroit defeating New York 5 to 4 in 11 innings and St. Louis whipping Washington, 4 to 2.

Charley Gehringer led Detroit to victory, starting the Tigers' three-run rally in the fourth, driving in the tieing run in the ninth and batting home the winning run in the eleventh.

Dick Coffman pitched nine-hit ball in defeating Washington for his third successive victory.

JACK (KID) BERG TO MEET CANZONERI IN NEW YORK SEPT. 10

New York, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Jack (Kid) Berg of England will have his second opportunity in five months to win the world's lightweight championship when he meets Champion Tony Canzoneri at the Pala grounds, Sept. 10.

Articles for the 15-round bout were signed yesterday and the match was approved by the New York state athletic commission.

Queen of Dances

The waltz is said to be the most famous and consistently popular dance in all history. The origin of the waltz is obscured in the dim past. In its modern guise it appeared in 1780, and "Ach du lieber Augustin" is said to be the first tune to which the waltz was danced.

On Top of the World

IN speaking of all those glorious sport veterans who are defying Father Time, the fans are liable to overlook the fact that one of the most remarkable of old-timers is an equine "athlete"—the famous Kilmer thoroughbred, Sun Beau.

Although 6 years old, Sun Beau is as sound as a rock. The way things look at present, it seems possible that this wonderful horse, the largest money winner in the history of racing, will reach the half million mark before he is through. When he won the Arlington Cup late in July, the purse of $19,400 brought his total to $302,844.

This put hmi in third place, behind Gallant Fox and Zev. Then his great victory in the Arlington Handicap catapulted him to the top, with a grand total of $330,044.

Sun Beau has several more important engagements this Summer, and it is likely he will be campaigned through the Fall season at Maryland. If he retains his Arlington form he should have little difficulty winning a great deal more in stakes and purses.

It was Mr. Kilmer's original intention to retire Beau last Autumn, but the famous horse was so good that he decided to send him west for the $100,000 Agua Caliente Handicap and retire him to the stud immediately after the victory. However, Mike Hall won the rich stake, and Sun Beau was beaten off, so Mr. Kilmer changed his plans. He kept the famous son of Sun Briar and Beautiful Lady in training, and the old fellow seems to improve with age. His Arlington Cup victory was the best race of his career, establishing a new track record of 2:01 4-5 for a mile and a quarter while easily defeating the best handicap horses in the West.

Willis Sharpe Kilmer has unbounded faith in his horse, believes he is the greatest thoroughbred of all ages in the world, and that because of Sun Beau's quality, he is entitled to roll up an unbeatable record as the largest money winner of all time. And turf fans are rooting for the big horse to reach his goal—the half-million mark this time!

Centuries-Old Proverb

The proverb, "The gray mare is the better horse," dates back to Heywood (1546).

A BEDTIME STORY

SLOW GROWTH

Ted's ambition is to be as big as his cousin Ed, who is some years older. He was told that to do so he must eat more good, rich food. He accepted the challenge and measurements were taken on the stove.

The other day after he had made several trips to the pantry between meals, he sought the measuring mark, looked carefully and then said disgustedly.

"Dog gone it, I ain't growed a bit since yesterday."

Politeness

A.—I asked my girl what she thought of me and she said she thought I'd be very attractive to mice. What on earth do you think she meant by it?

B.—It was just a polite way of saying that you are a piece of cheese.—Chicago News.

Inconceivable

"A tourist came in his and actually wanted some gas without paying for it," said the old-timer.

"Did you refuse?" inquired his neighbor.

"No, but imagine a man with nerve like that not holding some political job."—Chicago News.

Application

Motorist—If took me about six weeks' hard work to learn how to drive my car.

Friend—And what have you got for your pains?

Motorist—Liniment.—The Humorist.

Not Wasted

Visitor—Does your stenographer waste much time?

Boss—I should say not, she's been here about four weeks and is engaged to the junior member.

Out Roaming

Mrs. Juggs—We're going on a long trip this summer.

Mrs. Muggs—My husband's out of work, too.

LUCKY STROKE

Mrs. Henpecque—That paper says that a man was arrested on his wedding day and sent to the penitentiary for life.

Mr. Henpecque—Yes—awful lucky for him.

Out of Luck

"Above all," the doctor urged, "you must eat more fruit, and particularly the skin of fruit. The skin contains all the virtues and the vitamins. What, by the way, is your favorite fruit?"

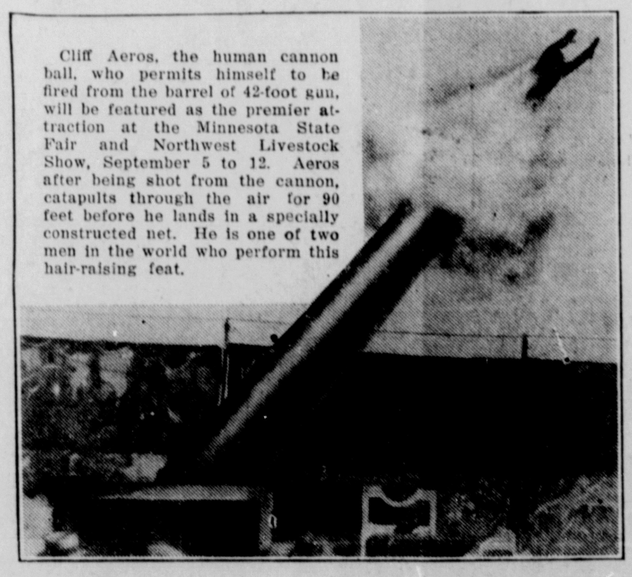

The patient looked gloomy. "Coconuts," he said.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS

Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, who celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday Sunday, is shown here as he carved his birthday cake with Mrs. Stagg looking on. The famous coach said he was feeling well, doesn't even contemplate retiring, and is anxious for the football season to begin.

HUMAN CANNON BALL COMING TO STATE FAIR

Cliff Aeros, the human cannon ball, who permits himself to be fired from the barrel of 42-foot gun, will be featured as the premier attraction at the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Livestock Show, September 5 to 12. Aeros after being shot from the cannon, catapults through the air for 90 feet before he lands in a specially constructed net. He is one of two men in the world who perform this hair-raising feat.

Warfare on Ants

Ants infecting house timbers, which have not been previously impregnated with creosote, may sometimes be reached and killed by the abundant use of kerosene injected by means of a syringe, or, where the timbers are accessible, by spraying or soaking them with kerosene. All timbers which have been mined and weakened should be replaced with timbers protected with creosote.

In Memory of Runnymede

The Daughters of the Barons of Runnymede was founded in 1915 by Mrs. Robert E. Hogan of Cantonsville, Md. The membership is limited to those who can trace their ancestry in a direct line to a baron, who, in 1215, A. D., compelled the signing of Magna Charta by King John at Runnymede. The organization is American.

STATE FAIR HAS NEW THRILLERS

Autogiro, Shooting Man from Cannon, Balloon Ascension On the Program.

The entertainment program to be presented at the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Livestock Show, September 5 to 12, will be vast and varied, embracing many new features in addition to those which retain their popularity from year to year.

"World on Parade" not only is the theme of the gigantic outdoor spectacle to be offered before the Grandstand each night, but it epitomizes this year's program from beginning to end, it is announced by Raymond A. Lee, secretary of the Fair.

Speed events are demanded and taken for granted each year, but new names and new aspirants will appear on the auto racing cards September 5, 9 and 12, and new horses will be driven for new records in the harness events September 7, 8, 10 and 11. Purses aggregating $21,000 will attract more than 200 trotters and pacers from far and wide, and eight running races are carded.

State Fair visitors will find a new thrill in the performance of the Autogiro or windmill type of airplane, which will take off at a sharp angle after an amazingly short run immediately in front of the Grandstand, maintain a low flight speed approximating 20 miles an hour, "hover" in midair, then after attaining a surprising cruising speed, descend vertically and more slowly than a parachute jumper.

Another performance of the air, and one which will stir recollections of an earlier day, will be a revival of an old-fashioned balloon ascension, with a parachute jumper cutting loose from the great gas bag and drifting gracefully to earth.

More than a dozen bands and orchestras will furnish State Fair music, among them, Roy D. Smith's Royal Scotch Highlanders Band, world-famous musical organization.

Novelty of setting, scenery and lighting effects and a departure in manner of portrayal will characterize the nightly presentation of "World on Parade," the colorful outdoor spectacle which will close with fireworks replete with surprises.

Gorgeously costumed and headed by a duo of adagio dancers, the Sixteen Abbott Dancers, internationally famous ballet, will appear for a special State Fair engagement. Acrobatic, eccentric and tap dancing will be presented by the English Tivoli Girls. The Wan Wan San Troupe of fourteen of China's greatest contortionists and "wonder workers," Senor Cimijotti's ten dancing horses and twelve master horsemen, Cliff Aeros shooting 90 feet from a monster cannon, high rigging performers, comedy mules and other trained animal acts; everything from clowns to grand opera artists—these are among the many attractions to be offered.

Models of Occidental art treasures, including paintings, costumes, draperies, lanterns and other antiques acquired during many years effort in China will be shown in Madame Mari's exhibit, and the cruel methods of ancient torture will be depicted.

Interest will be attached to the Ituri Pygmy Village over which Chief Eli Elliculum and his wife, Zambezi, of the Belgian Congo preside.

The Evening Horse Show, September 7 to 11, and the second annual Boy Scout Camp and Indian Village will offer new features.

Admission to the State Fair will be 50 cents.

Eskimo's Impediments

A great deal of genuine interest was shown in an exhibition of Eskimo life, shown at Montreal. There were specimens of tools and weapons, ancient and modern, made use of in the Arctic regions. There were snow glasses made of wood with small slits for vision; curious drills which the Eskimo holds in his teeth while he presses the point into the ground or the ice; a leather belt with an ivory buckle; fine combs delicately carved out of ivory; ivory needles and toys; carved miniatures of bears, walrus and seals; ivory rattles and draughts.

Moths eat only when in the larval or worm stage. The winged moth never eats, for its mouth is not made for eating. One winged or adult moth in an experiment lived for 77 days without eating. The male moth lives nearly twice as long as the female.

"Unlucky" Bridge Players

Watch the cards held by the habitually unlucky player and without doubt they would be found average cards; but when he holds a good hand he does nothing with it, and when he has a bad hand he loses every trick it is possible to lose.—A. W. Drayson.

SWINE SHOULD BE IMMUNIZED QUICK

Always Danger of Infection in Hidden Places.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

In communities where hog cholera existed during the winter, particularly in the North, says a statement from the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, hogs that died from the disease very likely were left unburied, perhaps covered with snow. Frozen ground makes it a difficult task to bury these carcasses, and owners sometimes defer this work till the snow has melted and the frost is out of the ground. In the meantime, new litters farrowed on the premises, as well as other susceptible hogs brought in from outside sources, are in danger of taking cholera from the infection thus scattered.

All susceptible swine on such premises should be immunized. There is always a possibility of infection being present in hidden places to which cholera-sick hogs have had access, thus constituting a source of danger, even after the dead hogs have been properly disposed of. In short, where hog-cholera infection is known to exist, the federal specialists say, prompt attention should be given to the immunization of the herd. It is not always safe to rely on ability to keep hogs away from places where infection may lurk. Once the serum and virus used in preventing cholera have been properly administered, the owner may rest assured that his hogs are immune and will not contract the disease.

Protein Essential to Raise Swine Cheaply

Protein in liberal amounts is absolutely essential for producing pork profitably and unless some feed high in protein is supplied along with the corn, barley, wheat or other fattening feeds, gains are certain to be slow and costly, says A. E. Engebretson, extension live stock specialist, University farm, St. Paul, Minn.

"Skimmilk or buttermilk, fed at the rate of three pounds to each pound of grain, or approximately a gallon a pig daily throughout the feeding period, will take care of the protein needs," Mr. Engebretson explains. "When skimmilk or buttermilk is lacking, a mixture of equal parts of tankage and oilmeal is recommended. This mixture may be self-fed when pigs are on full feed. However, when any one or a mixture of such ground grains as barley, wheat, oats or rye is fed, pigs may eat more of the tankage and oilmeal than necessary because the above grains contain more fiber than corn. This over-consumption of the protein feed may be avoided by mixing it with the ground grain, using eight pounds of tankage, or ten pounds of mixed tankage and oilmeal, to 100 pounds of grain."

Barn and House Flies Carry Various Diseases

Cholera is not, as commonly supposed, carried so much by man or pigeons as it is by both barn and house flies. This finding is the result of ten years of investigational work, chiefly in Iowa. By liberating flies that were colored for later identification, it was learned that they traveled as far as 13 miles, going six miles in 24 hours. Horse flies followed a team two miles.

According to Dr. C. N. McBride, of the United States bureau of animal industry, if middle western farmers would bale as much straw as needed and burn the rest of it, they would be doing a wise thing as far as cholera is concerned. Wet straw and manure piles make ideal breeding places for stable flies, and should be spread on the fields with a manure spreader, rather than be allowed to accumulate around the barns or feed yards.

Skimmilk and Pasture Grass Quite Valuable

Skimmilk and pasture grass are both relatively bulky feeds for the nutrients contained. Pigs are unlike cattle, they cannot utilize large quantities of bulky feeds. Furthermore, skimmilk and pasture grass, when constituting the sole ration of growing pigs, supply more protein than is required for normal growth. Gains are relatively small, and there is a waste of protein. What appear to be cheap gains are, in reality, expensive gains. The proteins of the skimmilk and pasture grass are made much more valuable when barley or corn is added to the ration.

Mares Need Exercise

Many mares fail to produce living foals because of idleness and improper feeding, according to L. P. McCann, Ohio State university. Mares that work regularly at light jobs generally produce the best foals. Heavy pulling, backing and forcing them to wade through deep mud are injurious, however. A ration suitable for brood mares is one consisting of liberal allowances of legume hay and grain composed of four parts oats and one of bran.

PURE BRED RAMS SWELL RETURNS

Good Market Lambs Produced by Crossbreeding.

Sheep returns may be substantially increased by using a ram of good breeding and of the right type, says L. A. Kauffman, extension specialist in animal husbandry at the Ohio State university.

To sire lambs of a desirable market type a ram should be muttony in his make-up and yet carry a fleece that is uniform and possesses length and density. Fortunately for those who will purchase rams for the coming season, pure bred prices have been deflated, in most cases, more than commercial sheep prices.

Many Ohio sheepmen who possess fine-wool ewes and who are interested in increasing their volume of business when wool prices are low will find it profitable to practice cross breeding, according to Kauffman. Where a good mutton ram is mated with merino ewes a desirable market lamb results. This practice does not cause any sacrifice in the wool clip, but helps in increasing returns from the lambs.

Some provision should be made for the replacement of the fine-wool breeding flock. In flocks using two rams, he suggests that one-half of the ewes be bred to a good "C" type ram and the best ewe lambs retained for flock replacement. The other half of the flock may then be bred to a mutton ram for the production of market lambs.

When ewes have sufficient capacity and are good milkers it is best to flush them at breeding time. If they are gaining rapidly in weight at the time they are bred, the lambing per cent will be increased, Kauffman points out.

When the season of slack pastures arrives a grain mixture should be fed the lambs if forage crops are not available. Lambs fed a grain allowance while on old bluegrass pasture usually produce good returns. At the Ohio experiment station this past year grain fed weaned lambs on pasture greatly stimulated gains. For each $1 invested in feed $2 was returned.

Pasture Important for Pigs During Hot Season

Rapid economical gains can be put on pigs which have alfalfa or red clover pasture, according to J. W. Wuichet, Ohio State university. Alfalfa is the best legume pasture as it comes earliest and stays latest in the year. Considering the farm rotation, possibly the red clover crop is best.

Close pasturing alfalfa is sure to cause injury which will shorten its life, Wuichet states. If there is much alsike in the clover, pigs should be grazed on it only when it is dry as it will blister as does rape.

Sweet clover is not relished by pigs if other legumes can be had. In case there is no legume pasture rape makes a good forage. Rape can be sown any time in the spring and summer and will provide pasture in about eight weeks.

Anemia Is Curable if Given Right Attention

Thumps and lack of endurance in baby pigs are the first symptoms of anemia in pigs, three to six weeks old. This disease is caused by a lack of blood-forming elements in the sow's milk. It is induced by continued confinement of the pigs to the house, keeping them off the ground where they can pick up the essentials for good health.

The missing elements in the sow's milk are salts of iron which can be supplied in ferric sulfate. This may be fed in a sticky substance such as molasses which may be applied to the sows udder to insure that the pigs get the elements needed, according to Dr. H. B. Eddington, Ohio experiment station.

Now Buy Dressed Lamb Graded for Quality

Meat consumers in some cities can now buy dressed lamb graded for quality according to standards of the United States Department of Agriculture. This new service has been started by the bureau of agricultural economics in four cities—St. Louis, Detroit Buffalo, and Erie. The guaranty of quality which the bureau's stamp on beef carries has created a demand by the trade for a similar service for lamb. The lamb-grading service will gradually be extended to other cities.

Value of Skimmilk

One hundred pounds of skimmilk is worth one-half the price of a bushel of corn for hogs, says the Nebraska College of Agriculture. Milk, however, should not be fed to sows until three weeks after they farrow because it may increase the milk flow and produce scours in the pigs. The college recommends the feeding of proteins such as shorts, tankage and alfalfa hay until the sows have been put on a full feed, after which milk may be included in the ration.

Centuries-Old Proverb

The proverb, "The gray mare is the better horse," dates back to Heywood (1540).

A BEDTIME STORY

SLOW GROWTH

Ted's ambition is to be as big as his cousin Ed, who is some years older. He was told that to do so he must eat more good, rich food. He accepted the challenge and measurements were taken on the stove.

The other day after he had made several trips to the pantry between meals, he sought the measuring mark, looked carefully and then said disgustedly.

"Dog gone it, I ain't growed a bit since yesterday."

Politeness

A.—I asked my girl what she thought of me and she said she thought I'd be very attractive to mice. What on earth do you think she meant by it?

B.—It was just a polite way of saying that you are a piece of cheese.—Chicago News.

Inconceivable

"A tourist came in his and actually wanted some gas without paying for it," said the old-timer.

"Did you refuse?" inquired his neighbor.

"No, but imagine a man with nerve like that not holding some political job."—Chicago News.

Application

Motorist—If took me about six weeks' hard work to learn how to drive my car.

Friend—And what have you got for your pains?

Motorist—Liniment.—The Humorist.

Not Wasted

Visitor—Does your stenographer waste much time?

Boss—I should say not, she's been here about four weeks and is engaged to the junior member.

Out Roaming

Mrs. Juggs—We're going on a long trip this summer.

Mrs. Muggs—My husband's out of work, too.

LUCKY STROKE

Mrs. Henpecque—That paper says that a man was arrested on his wedding day and sent to the penitentiary for life.

Mr. Henpecque—Yes—awful lucky for him.

Out of Luck

"Above all," the doctor urged, "you must eat more fruit, and particularly the skin of fruit. The skin contains all the virtues and the vitamins. What, by the way, is your favorite fruit?"

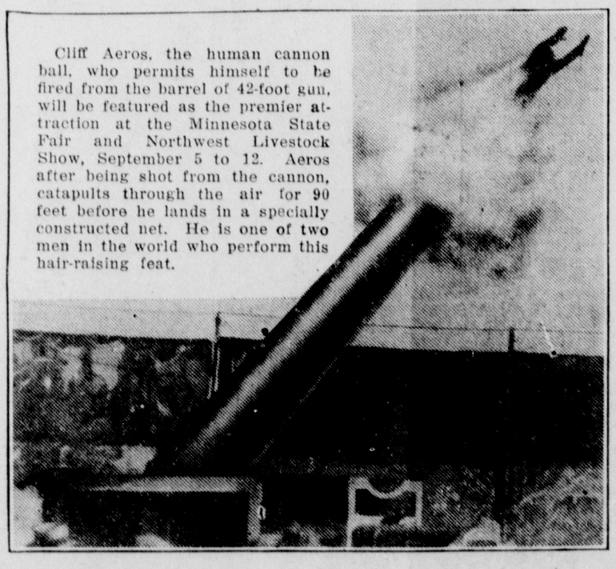

The patient looked gloomy. "Coconuts," he said.

MANY HAPPY RETURNS

Coach A. A. Stagg of the University of Chicago, who celebrated his sixty-ninth birthday Sunday, is shown here as he carved his birthday cake with Mrs. Stagg looking on. The famous coach said he was feeling well, doesn't even contemplate retiring, and is anxious for the football season to begin.

HUMAN CANNON BALL COMING TO STATE FAIR

Cliff Aeros, the human cannon ball, who permits himself to be fired from the barrel of 42-foot gun, will be featured as the premier attraction at the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Livestock Show, September 5 to 12. Aeros after being shot from the cannon, catapults through the air for 90 feet before he lands in a specially constructed net. He is one of two men in the world who perform this hair-raising feat.

Warfare on Ants

Ants infecting house timbers, which have not been previously impregnated with creosote, may sometimes be reached and killed by the abundant use of kerosene injected by means of a syringe, or, where the timbers are accessible, by spraying or soaking them with kerosene. All timbers which have been mined and weakened should be replaced with timbers protected with creosote.

In Memory of Runnymede

The Daughters of the Barons of Runnymede was founded in 1915 by Mrs. Robert E. Hogan of Cantonsville, Md. The membership is limited to those who can trace their ancestry in a direct line to a baron, who, in 1215, A. D., compelled the signing of Magna Charta by King John at Runnymede. The organization is American.

STATE FAIR HAS NEW THRILLERS

Autogiro, Shooting Man from Cannon, Balloon Ascension On the Program.

The entertainment program to be presented at the Minneosta State Fair and Northwest Livestock Show, September 5 to 12, will be vast and varied, embracing many new features in addition to those which retain their popularity from year to year.

"World on Parade" not only is the theme of the gigantic outdoor spectacle to be offered before the Grandstand each night, but it epitomizes this year's program from beginning to end, it is announced by Raymond A. Lee, secretary of the Fair.

Speed events are demanded and taken for granted each year, but new names and new aspirants will appear on the auto racing cards September 5, 9 and 12, and new horses will be driven for new records in the harness events September 7, 8, 10 and 11. Purses aggregating $21,000 will attract more than 200 trotters and pacers from far and wide, and eight running races are carded.

State Fair visitors will find a new thrill in the performance of the Autogiro or windmill type of airplane, which will take off at a sharp angle after an amazingly short run immediately in front of the Grandstand, maintain a low flight speed approximating 20 miles an hour, "hover" in midair, then after attaining a surprising cruising speed, descend vertically and more slowly than a parachute jumper.

Another performance of the air, and one which will stir recollections of an earlier day, will be a revival of an old-fashioned balloon ascension, with a parachute jumper cutting loose from the great gas bag and drifting gracefully to earth.

More than a dozen bands and orchestras will furnish State Fair music, among them, Roy D. Smith's Royal Scotch Highlanders Band, world-famous musical organization.

Novelty of setting, scenery and lighting effects and a departure in manner of portrayal will characterize the nightly presentation of "World on Parade," the colorful outdoor spectacle which will close with fireworks replete with surprises.

Gorgeously costumed and headed by a duo of adagio dancers, the Sixteen Abbott Dancers, internationally famous ballet, will appear for a special State Fair engagement. Acrobatic, eccentric and tap dancing will be presented by the English Tivoli Girls. The Wan Wan San Troupe of fourteen of China's greatest contortionists and "wonder workers," Senor Cimijotti's ten dancing horses and twelve master horsemen, Cliff Aeros shooting 90 feet from a monster cannon, high rigging performers, comedy mules and other trained animal acts; everything from clowns to grand opera artists—these are among the many attractions to be offered.

Models of Occidental art treasures, including paintings, costumes, draperies, lanterns and other antiques acquired during many years effort in China will be shown in Madame Mari's exhibit, and the cruel methods of ancient torture will be depicted.

Interest will be attached to the Ituri Pygmy Village over which Chief Eli Elliculum and his wife, Zambezi, of the Belgian Congo preside.

The Evening Horse Show, September 7 to 11, and the second annual Boy Scout Camp and Indian Village will offer new features.

Admission to the State Fair will be 50 cents.

Eskimo's Impedimenta

A great deal of genuine interest was shown in an exhibition of Eskimo life, shown at Montreal. There were specimens of tools and weapons, ancient and modern, made use of in the Arctic regions. There were snow glasses made of wood with small slits for vision; curious drills which the Eskimo holds in his teeth while he presses the point into the ground or the ice; a leather belt with an ivory buckle; fine combs delicately carved out of ivory; ivory needles and toys; carved miniatures of bears, walrus and seals; ivory rattles and draughts.

Habits of Moths

Moths eat only when in the larval or worm stage. The winged moth never eats, for its mouth is not made for eating. One winged or adult moth in an experiment lived for 77 days without eating. The male moth lives nearly twice as long as the female.

"Unlucky" Bridge Players

Watch the cards held by the habitually unlucky player and without doubt they would be found average cards; but when he holds a good hand he does nothing with it, and when he has a bad hand he loses every trick it is possible to lose.—A. W. Dr...son.

SWINE SHOULD BE IMMUNIZED QUICK

Always Danger of Infection in Hidden Places.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

In communities where hog cholera existed during the winter, particularly in the North, says a statement from the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, hogs that died from the disease very likely were left unburied, perhaps covered with snow. Frozen ground makes it a difficult task to bury these carcasses, and owners sometimes defer this work till the snow has melted and the frost is out of the ground. In the meantime, new litters farrowed on the premises, as well as other susceptible hogs brought in from outside sources, are in danger of taking cholera from the infection thus scattered.

All susceptible swine on such premises should be immunized. There is always a possibility of infection being present in hidden places to which cholera-sick hogs have had access, thus constituting a source of danger, even after the dead hogs have been properly disposed of. In short, where hog-cholera infection is known to exist, the federal specialists say, prompt attention should be given to the immunization of the herd. It is not always safe to rely on ability to keep hogs away from places where infection may lurk. Once the serum and virus used in preventing cholera have been properly administered, the owner may rest assured that his hogs are immune and will not contract the disease.

Protein Essential to Raise Swine Cheaply

Protein in liberal amounts is absolutely essential for producing pork profitably and unless some feed high in protein is supplied along with the corn, barley, wheat or other fattening feeds, gains are certain to be slow and costly, says A. E. Engebretson, extension live stock specialist, University farm, St. Paul, Minn.

"Skimmilk or buttermilk, fed at the rate of three pounds to each pound of grain, or approximately a gallon a pig daily throughout the feeding period, will take care of the protein needs," Mr. Engebretson explains. "When skimmilk or buttermilk is lacking, a mixture of equal parts of tankage and oilmeal is recommended. This mixture may be self-fed when pigs are on full feed. However, when any one or a mixture of such ground grains as barley, wheat, oats or rye is fed, pigs may eat more of the tankage and oilmeal than necessary because the above grains contain more fiber than corn. This over-consumption of the protein feed may be avoided by mixing it with the ground grain, using eight pounds of tankage, or ten pounds of mixed tankage and oilmeal, to 100 pounds of grain."

Barn and House Flies Carry Various Diseases

Cholera is not, as commonly supposed, carried so much by man or pigeons as it is by both barn and house flies. This finding is the result of ten years of investigational work, chiefly in Iowa. By liberating flies that were colored for later identification, it was learned that they traveled as far as 13 miles, going six miles in 24 hours. Horse flies followed a team two miles.

According to Dr. C. N. McBride, of the United States bureau of animal industry, if middle western farmers would bale as much straw as needed and burn the rest of it, they would be doing a wise thing as far as cholera is concerned. Wet straw and manure piles make ideal breeding places for stable flies, and should be spread on the fields with a manure spreader, rather than be allowed to accumulate around the barns or feed yards.

Skimmilk and Pasture Grass Quite Valuable

Skimmilk and pasture grass are both relatively bulky feeds for the nutrients contained. Pigs are unlike cattle, they cannot utilize large quantities of bulky feeds. Furthermore, skimmilk and pasture grass, when constituting the sole ration of growing pigs, supply more protein than is required for normal growth. Gains are relatively small, and there is a waste of protein. What appear to be cheap gains are, in reality, expensive gains. The proteins of the skimmilk and pasture grass are made much more valuable when barley or corn is added to the ration.

Mares Need Exercise

Many mares fail to produce living foals because of idleness and improper feeding, according to L. P. McCann, Ohio State university. Mares that work regularly at light jobs generally produce the best foals. Heavy pulling, backing and forcing them to wade through deep mud are injurious, however. A ration suitable for brood mares is one consisting of liberal allowances of legume hay and grain composed of four parts oats and one of bran.

FARM STOCK

PURE BRED RAMS SWELL RETURNS

Good Market Lambs Produced by Crossbreeding.

Sheep returns may be substantially increased by using a ram of good breeding and of the right type, says L. A. Kauffman, extension specialist in animal husbandry at the Ohio State university.

To sire lambs of a desirable market type a ram should be muttony in his make-up and yet carry a fleece that is uniform and possesses length and density. Fortunately for those who will purchase rams for the coming season, pure bred prices have been deflated, in most cases, more than commercial sheep prices.

Many Ohio sheepmen who possess fine-wool ewes and who are interested in increasing their volume of business when wool prices are low will find it profitable to practice cross breeding, according to Kauffman. Where a good mutton ram is mated with merino ewes a desirable market lamb results. This practice does not cause any sacrifice in the wool clip, but helps in increasing returns from the lambs.

Some provision should be made for the replacement of the fine-wool breeding flock. In flocks using two rams, he suggests that one-half of the ewes be bred to a good "C" type ram and the best ewe lambs retained for flock replacement. The other half of the flock may then be bred to a mutton ram for the production of market lambs.

When ewes have sufficient capacity and are good milkers it is best to flush them at breeding time. If they are gaining rapidly in weight at the time they are bred, the lambing per cent will be increased, Kauffman points out.

When the season of slack pastures arrives a grain mixture should be fed the lambs if forage crops are not available. Lambs fed a grain allowance while on old bluegrass pasture usually produce good returns. At the Ohio experiment station this past year grain fed weaned lambs on pasture greatly stimulated gains. For each $1 invested in feed $2 was returned.

Pasture Important for Pigs During Hot Season

Rapid economical gains can be put on pigs which have alfalfa or red clover pasture, according to J. W. Wuichet, Ohio State university. Alfalfa is the best legume pasture as it comes earliest and stays latest in the year. Considering the farm rotation, possibly the red clover crop is best.

Close pasturing alfalfa is sure to cause injury which will shorten its life, Wuichet states. If there is much alsike in the clover, pigs should be grazed on it only when it is dry as it will blister as does rape.

Sweet clover is not relished by pigs if other legumes can be had. In case there is no legume pasture rape makes a good forage. Rape can be sown any time in the spring and summer and will provide pasture in about eight weeks.

Anemia Is Curable if Given Right Attention

Thumps and lack of endurance in baby pigs are the first symptoms of anemia in pigs, three to six weeks old. This disease is caused by a lack of blood-forming elements in the sow's milk. It is induced by continued confinement of the pigs to the house, keeping them off the ground where they can pick up the essentials for good health.

The missing elements in the sow's milk are salts of iron which can be supplied in ferric sulfate. This may be fed in a sticky substance such as molasses which may be applied to the sows udder to insure that the pigs get the elements needed, according to Dr. H. B. Eddington, Ohio experiment station.

Now Buy Dressed Lamb Graded for Quality

Meat consumers in some cities can now buy dressed lamb graded for quality according to standards of the United States Department of Agriculture. This new service has been started by the bureau of agricultural economics in four cities—St. Louis, Detroit Buffalo, and Erie. The guaranty of quality which the bureau's stamp on beef carries has created a demand by the trade for a similar service for lamb. The lamb-grading service will gradually be extended to other cities.

Value of Skimmilk

One hundred pounds of skimmilk is worth one-half the price of a bushel of corn for hogs, says the Nebraska College of Agriculture. Milk, however, should not be fed to sows until three weeks after they farrow because it may increase the milk flow and produce scours in the pigs. The college recommends the feeding of proteins such as shorts, tankage and alfalfa hay until the sows have been put on a full feed, after which milk may be included in the ration.

Mrs. Fawcett Says She Doesn't Want Breezy Employee Prosecuted But Asks Reprimand

WLL PAY DAMAGES

"Guess I'm Not Employee Any Longer," Musolf Says After Making Confession

"I don't want him prosecuted but I want to teach him a lesson," Mrs. Fawcett, wife of Captain Billy, said here today as she brought an employee of Breezy Point to county authorities.

The young man in question is Ervin Musolf, engineer of the power plant at Breezy and the particular complaint against this person is that he took a guest's car out of the garage at the resort, drove it to Pequot last evening and there pretty well damaged it.

"I guess I'm not an employee at Breezy any longer," Musolf said, after he admitted the taking of the car to Sheriff Frank E. Little and authorities.

"I suppose I will have to pay the damages to the car. It will likely cost me $300," Mrs. Fawcett said.

Are you planning on moving? Or perhaps you are just returning home from your vacation and in taking up your home duties once more you find a number of articles, either wearing apparel or odd pieces of furniture, which you had intended to use but now find you do not want them, and you turn to the furnace as a quick way to dispose of them. Please don't burn them. Just step to your phone and call Mrs. Mannis, 975 or Mrs. E. Haake, 1196-R or Miss Eula Michael, 149-W. Any one of these ladies will be glad to explain to you the great need for these articles, in homes where there isn't a steady job—perhaps a home where there are several small children and the father out of employment the greater part of the year. Perhaps you can't believe that we have in our own community, a number of families who could and would make use of the articles which you consider useless. But don't carry it to the furnace until you have at least given one of these ladies, named above, a chance to explain how very great the need is in some families who have been less fortunate in a financial way, than yourself.

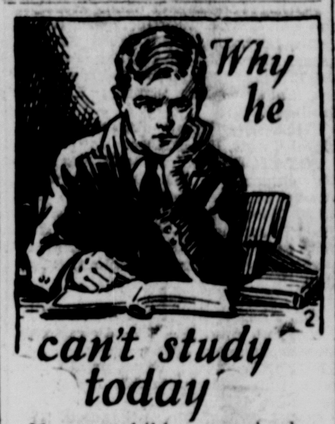

It has come to our attention, that there are strangers, who do not live in the state, going from door to door soliciting food or clothing. Why give your alms all to one or two people in that way, when we are so fortunate as to have several very efficient committees working to relieve these distressing conditions, among all the needy, such as the relief committee, which was formed last fall for this very purpose or the Brainerd Health Service society whose sole aim for the last several years has been to help the sick and needy poor of our community.

WLL PAY DAMAGES

"Guess I'm Not Employee Any Longer," Musolf Says After Making Confession

"I don't want him prosecuted but I want to teach him a lesson," Mrs. Fawcett, wife of Captain Billy, said here today as she brought an employee of Breezy Point to county authorities.

The young man in question is Ervin Musolf, engineer of the power plant at Breezy and the particular complaint against this person is that he took a guest's car out of the garage at the resort, drove it to Pequot last evening and there pretty well damaged it.

"I guess I'm not an employee at Breezy any longer," Musolf said, after he admitted the taking of the car to Sheriff Frank E. Little and authorities.

"I suppose I will have to pay the damages to the car. It will likely cost me $300," Mrs. Fawcett said.

ATTENTION HOUSEWIVES

Are you planning on moving? Or perhaps you are just returning home from your vacation and in taking up your home duties once more you find a number of articles, either wearing apparel or odd pieces of furniture, which you had intended to use but now find you do not want them, and you turn to the furnace as a quick way to dispose of them. Please don't burn them. Just step to your phone and call Mrs. Mannis, 975 or Mrs. E. Haake, 1196-R or Miss Eula Michael, 149-W. Any one of these ladies will be glad to explain to you the great need for these articles, in homes where there isn't a steady job—perhaps a home where there are several small children and the father out of employment the greater part of the year. Perhaps you can't believe that we have in our own community, a number of families who could and would make use of the articles which you consider useless. But don't carry it to the furnace until you have at least given one of these ladies, named above, a chance to explain how very great the need is in some families who have been less fortunate in a financial way, than yourself.

It has come to our attention, that there are strangers, who do not live in the state, going from door to door soliciting food or clothing. Why give your alms all to one or two people in that way, when we are so fortunate as to have several very efficient committees working to relieve these distressing conditions, among all the needy, such as the relief committee, which was formed last fall for this very purpose or the Brainerd Health Service society whose sole aim for the last several years has been to help the sick and needy poor of our community.

President.
MRS. F. M. KELLY,

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the various organizations, friends and neighbors who so kindly gave of their sympathy and help in our great sorrow.

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan, seeks a position in the home of wealthy Mrs. Margaret Lorrimer, when the latter's son, Travers, a shell-shocked war veteran, enters. At sight of Mary Lou he becomes wildly excited, takes her in his arms and calls her "Delight" and "wife." Later, Mrs. Lorrimer explains that Travers has mistaken Mary Lou for Delight Harford, whom he claims he married in England, but of whom no record can be found. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight to help Travers regain his health. Travers is told that, as Delight was so young at the time of her marriage and had since thought him dead, they must start all over again. In her first encounter with Travers, Mary Lou plays her part perfectly. Travers takes new interest in life.

CHAPTER XX.

"WHY, Lorry?" asked Margaret Lorrimer.

"That's what she, Delight, called him. He asked me why I didn't?"

"I see—you've worked wonders already," Mrs. Lorrimer told her again.

"Not really. It's the novelty of the situation," explained Mary Lou earnestly, "that makes him so easy to handle. And he is making it easy for me, in more ways than one. If only . . . if only," she said, "we can keep it up and get him more and more back to normal! I would have accepted his offer to teach me to ride even if I hated the thought, which I didn't."

Presently a saleswoman and an assistant arrived from New York and Mary Lou's room took on the semblance of a shop gone mad. There was plenty to choose from and Mrs. Lorrimer selected, eventually, three plain charming daytime dresses, suitable for early Winter wear in the country, a suit for town, and all the accessories of lingerie, shoes and gloves. She selected also several afternoon and dinner dresses and evening frocks, admirably suited to Mary Lou's type, delightful in cut and coloring.

Means to an End

"But," cried Mary Lou, pirouetting in the prettiest evening frock of all, a tight, scant, high-waisted bodice of clear pale green and a skirt formed of many petals of tulle, with the long lines of the mode, entirely charming and becoming "but—these are far too many!"

"I don't think so," Mrs. Lorrimer replied critically, "but they will do for now, at any event. I'm anxious to go to town but that can wait." She smiled at Mary Lou and Mary Lou smiled back, understanding. "But you'll have plenty of use for them. We'll get some young people over, a little later. Jenny and her 'gang,' perhaps. Travers hasn't been anxious for company, you know; has avoided it. But with you here, he'll soon see that he can't coop you up alone for long. It wouldn't be fair to you, and it will be good for him to see people," she added, lower.

Mary Lou nodded again. She could see Mrs. Lorrimer's point. With herself as an excuse, Mrs. Lorrimer would try to win back her son to the give and take of young, happy society again. It would be the best thing that could ever happen to him.

After the bizarre but delectable pajamas had been selected and the clever little negligee coats that went with them, Mrs. Lorrimer sent a tea tray to the saleswoman and her assistant, up in Mary Lou's sitting room, and ordered the car for the late afternoon train. Then she and Mary Lou went down to the library, Mary Lou wearing one of the new frocks, the sheer matching stockings and the completely satisfactory shoes, while the shop people repacked what little there was left, drank their tea and raved almost incoherently about Mrs. Lorrimer and her—was it niece?

"Ask Mr. Travers if he will join us," Mrs. Lorrimer told Peter, when tea was served in the great book-lined room which contrived to be bookly without gloom and comfortable and gay without distraction.

"A Mother's Hope"

He would and did. Refreshed from sleep, amazed, a little ashamed of himself, and suddenly quite hungry, he arrived in the library and was offered tea and toast and ordered to admire Mary Lou's gown.

"She's so easy to fit," said his mother, "that it was like dressing a doll!"

Lorrimer admired, sedate enough in words but his eyes spoke volumes. And Margaret Lorrimer suddenly felt a catch at her heart. If—if he fell in love with Mary Lou, transferred his affections? But of course he would not realize the transference. Still—he'd have to know some day. And then? And if Mary Lou—in her turn . . . ?

Travers' mother felt that it was a consummation devoutedly to be hoped for. She had never met a girl she liked as well, trusted as deeply and found as companionable as Mary Lou Thurston. But, the real Delight? Where was she? And did she exist? And was she living somewhere, the wife, perhaps, of the man who sat here, watching Mary Lou's least gesture with an enchanted eagerness?

She put the question from her, the problems it aroused, and spoke hastily of anything, everything, to distract her troubled thoughts. But the problem was not to be set aside as easily as that.

* * *

Shortly before Christmas Dr. Mathews, dropping in at tea hour, watched from the windows of the library the slight flurry of snow which came suddenly from an apparently cloudless sky and departed again, leaving the horizon clear, cold, blue; watched, too, Mary Lou and Lorrimer ride up the driveway, watched them from sight, heard them dismount at the main entrance, listened to the faint echo of voices and laughter and the clatter of hooves on the frosty drive, and turned to Mrs. Lorrimer who was watching him.

"He's better, isn't he?" he asked.

"Astonishingly so. They ride every day. She's managed to get him up early and to bed early by, merely, example. He's going to teach her to play squash. Yes, he's much better. Sleeps well, and his appetite has improved enormously. He still has those—well, spells of brooding. He's quiet then, abstracted, living over things. She pulls him out somehow. They read together, French, English and a little German.

"Neither of them is an accomplished German student. I think she started that to try and get him to a more rational memory of—war, prison, all the rest. She told me that if he could read of the new Germany in the original language she thought it would help; for she felt he'd gotten to thinking too much about what he had suffered, and did not realize that there were men on the other side who had suffered as greatly. So she got grammars and dictionaries and they have started. It's been interesting to watch them. And she's reconciled him to Jenny and her crowd. They come over now and then."

"What have you told Jenny?" asked the doctor.

"Just that Delight is a girl Travers knew during the war and that I've asked her to live with us, as my companion, as she is now alone in the world."

"She believes you?"

"Yes. Suspects a romance, but says nothing about it. Jenny is hard boiled—or so she thinks—but she is discreet."

"And if," Mathews asked slowly, "if Jenny should be right, and out of this experiment of ours romance should come—what then?"

"Oh," Margaret made a little helpless gesture, "I don't know! I—I'd wish it, of course. For my own sake as well as for Travers'. But—until we know for certain . . . ?"

Mathews started to answer, but at that moment Travers and Mary Lou came in, booted and spurred, with a hint of Winter winds about them, Lorrimer's sallow face glowing and Mary Lou's like nothing so much as a rose.

"We're starved, aren't we, Lorry? I hope there's lots of tea! No, I'd rather have milk if Peter doesn't mind," said Mary Lou, changing her mind, "and so would you, Lorry. You need to get some fat on that rack of bones," she assured him. "Dr. Mathews, I don't suppose you approve of stuffing between meals?"

Always on the Go

"I seem to be making an impression on this plate of toast," the doctor told her. They were old friends by now. "And in your case, Delight, I certainly do approve, for you use up enough energy for six girls in 24 hours, and this household is so fashionable it dines late. But what about your figure?"

"What about it?" asked Mary Lou, laughing, "I stay the same weight year round almost. Remember, I'm riding every day—and Lorry is going to let me jump next Spring. And I've my daily dozen. And do a lot more besides. And so I'm hungry most of the time," she confessed.

There was a scratch at the library door and an inquiring whine.

"Oh, please, may he come in?" Mary Lou begged. "He's been awfully good about waiting outside!"

Lorrimer rose and opened the door. Konig bounced past him, loped across the room and sat himself down at Mary Lou's feet, with a huge sigh of relief, his red tongue flickering across her hand and his entire body one welcoming waggle. Mary Lou tickled his pointed ears and gave him a forbidden lump of sugar.

Mathews raised an eyebrow at Margaret Lorrimer, remembering the long years when dogdom had been banished from this house.

Lieutenant William McMullen and Detective Jeff Dittrich while surveying a crowd at the Ramsey county fair noticed suspicious action on the part of a 16 year old boy. They followed the boy, they said, and when he entered his house they searched the premises.

Several displaced bricks in an old well led to their uprooting other bricks and uncovered the jewelry, police said. A .38 caliber revolver was found with the jewelry.

The Capitol at Washington is 746 feet long and 270 feet wide. The palace of the Dalai Lama at Lhasa is 1,000 feet long, four stories in height, surmounted by a large dome covered with gold, as are also the peristyle pillars in front. It contains 490 rooms and 1,333 windows. The building was commenced 1,200 years ago and the most recent addition is 200 years old. A lamaserie nearby shelters 7,500 lamas.

Real Dollar Bird

While the term "dollar bird" may be used as a slang name for the American eagle, the real dollar bird is an Australian roller, prevailing blue and black in plumage. It is so called from the large roundish spot of white on its wings, shown in flight.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

WHITE WITH BROWN

The sleeveless wash frock is the uniform of the day at Southampton and Newport, and nothing could be cooler or fresher-looking. But, of course, each frock is different from another in line and detail. This one of white handkerchief linen with brown dots, for instance, has unusual distinction in its youthful collar edged with pleating, and in the peplum-like row of pleating that tops its skirt. The note of brown is carried out by the crushed ribbon belt, and the costume is complemented by a brown and white knitted turban, brown and white shoes and six-button white gloves.

"MAKE-BELIEVE" by FAITH BALDWIN

Copyright, 1930, by Faith Baldwin Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Mary Lou Thurston, beautiful orphan, seeks a position in the home of wealthy Mrs. Margaret Lorrimer, when the latter's son, Travers, a shell-shocked war veteran, enters. At sight of Mary Lou he becomes wildly excited, takes her in his arms and calls her "Delight" and "wife." Later, Mrs. Lorrimer explains that Travers has mistaken Mary Lou for Delight Harford, whom he claims he married in England, but of whom no record can be found. Mrs. Lorrimer persuades Mary Lou to assume the role of Delight to help Travers regain his health. Travers is told that, as Delight was so young at the time of her marriage and had since thought him dead, they must start all over again. In her first encounter with Travers, Mary Lou plays her part perfectly. Travers takes new interest in life.

CHAPTER XX.

"WHY, Lorry?" asked Margaret Lorrimer.

"That's what she, Delight, called him. He asked me why I didn't?"

"I see—you've worked wonders already," Mrs. Lorrimer told her again.

"Not really. It's the novelty of the situation," explained Mary Lou earnestly, "that makes him so easy to handle. And he is making it easy for me, in more ways than one. If only . . . if only," she said, "we can keep it up and get him more and more back to normal! I would have accepted his offer to teach me to ride even if I hated the thought, which I didn't."

Presently a saleswoman and an assistant arrived from New York and Mary Lou's room took on the semblance of a shop gone mad. There was plenty to choose from and Mrs. Lorrimer selected, eventually, three plain charming daytime dresses, suitable for early Winter wear in the country, a suit for town, and all the accessories of lingerie, shoes and gloves. She selected also several afternoon and dinner dresses and evening frocks, admirably suited to Mary Lou's type, delightful in cut and coloring.

Means to an End

"But," cried Mary Lou, pirouetting in the prettiest evening frock of all, a tight, scant, high-waisted bodice of clear pale green and a skirt formed of many petals of tulle, with the long lines of the mode, entirely charming and becoming "but—these are far too many!"

"I don't think so," Mrs. Lorrimer replied critically, "but they will do for now, at any event. I'm anxious to go to town but that can wait." She smiled at Mary Lou and Mary Lou smiled back, understanding. "But you'll have plenty of use for them. We'll get some young people over, a little later. Jenny and her 'gang,' perhaps. Travers hasn't been anxious for company, you know; has avoided it. But with you here, he'll soon see that he can't coop you up alone for long. It wouldn't be fair to you, and it will be good for him to see people," she added, lower.

Mary Lou nodded again. She could see Mrs. Lorrimer's point. With herself as an excuse, Mrs. Lorrimer would try to win back her son to the give and take of young, happy society again. It would be the best thing that could ever happen to him.

After the bizarre but delectable pajamas had been selected and the clever little negligee coats that went with them, Mrs. Lorrimer sent a tea tray to the saleswoman and her assistant, up in Mary Lou's sitting room, and ordered the car for the late afternoon train. Then she and Mary Lou went down to the library, Mary Lou wearing one of the new frocks, the sheer matching stockings and the completely satisfactory shoes, while the shop people repacked what little there was left, drank their tea and raved almost incoherently about Mrs. Lorrimer and her—was it niece?

"Ask Mr. Travers if he will join us," Mrs. Lorrimer told Peter, when tea was served in the great book-lined room which contrived to be bookly without gloom and comfortable and gay without distraction.

"A Mother's Hope"

He would and did. Refreshed from sleep, amazed, a little ashamed of himself, and suddenly quite hungry, he arrived in the library and was offered tea and toast and ordered to admire Mary Lou's gown.

"She's so easy to fit," said his mother, "that it was like dressing a doll!"

Lorrimer admired, sedate enough in words but his eyes spoke volumes. And Margaret Lorrimer suddenly felt a catch at her heart. If—if he fell in love with Mary Lou, transferred his affections? But of course he would not realize the transference. Still—he'd have to know some day. And then? And if Mary Lou—in her turn . . . ?

Travers' mother felt that it was a consummation devoutedly to be hoped for. She had never met a girl she liked as well, trusted as deeply and found as companionable as Mary Lou Thurston. But, the real Delight? Where was she? And did she exist? And was she living somewhere, the wife, perhaps, of the man who sat here, watching Mary Lou's least gesture with an enchanted eagerness?

She put the question from her, the problems it aroused, and spoke hastily of anything, everything, to distract her troubled thoughts. But the problem was not to be set aside as easily as that.

* * *

Shortly before Christmas Dr. Mathews, dropping in at tea hour, watched from the windows of the library the slight flurry of snow which came suddenly from an apparently cloudless sky and departed again, leaving the horizon clear, cold, blue; watched, too, Mary Lou and Lorrimer ride up the driveway, watched them from sight, heard them dismount at the main entrance, listened to the faint echo of voices and laughter and the clatter of hooves on the frosty drive, and turned to Mrs. Lorrimer who was watching him.

"He's better, isn't he?" he asked.

"Astonishingly so. They ride every day. She's managed to get him up early and to bed early by, merely, example. He's going to teach her to play squash. Yes, he's much better. Sleeps well, and his appetite has improved enormously. He still has those—well, spells of brooding. He's quiet then, abstracted, living over things. She pulls him out somehow. They read together, French, English and a little German.

"Neither of them is an accomplished German student. I think she started that to try and get him to a more rational memory of—war, prison, all the rest. She told me that if he could read of the new Germany in the original language she thought it would help; for she felt he'd gotten to thinking too much about what he had suffered, and did not realize that there were men on the other side who had suffered as greatly. So she got grammars and dictionaries and they have started. It's been interesting to watch them. And she's reconciled him to Jenny and her crowd. They come over now and then."

"What have you told Jenny?" asked the doctor.

"Just that Delight is a girl Travers knew during the war and that I've asked her to live with us, as my companion, as she is now alone in the world."

"She believes you?"

"Yes. Suspects a romance, but says nothing about it. Jenny is hard boiled—or so she thinks—but she is discreet."

"And if," Mathews asked slowly, "if Jenny should be right, and out of this experiment of ours romance should come—what then?"

"Oh," Margaret made a little helpless gesture, "I don't know! I—I'd wish it, of course. For my own sake as well as for Travers'. But—until we know for certain . . . ?"

Mathews started to answer, but at that moment Travers and Mary Lou came in, booted and spurred, with a hint of Winter winds about them, Lorrimer's sallow face glowing and Mary Lou's like nothing so much as a rose.

"We're starved, aren't we, Lorry? I hope there's lots of tea! No, I'd rather have milk if Peter doesn't mind," said Mary Lou, changing her mind, "and so would you, Lorry. You need to get some fat on that rack of bones," she assured him. "Dr. Mathews, I don't suppose you approve of stuffing between meals?"

Always on the Go

"I seem to be making an impression on this plate of toast," the doctor told her. They were old friends by now. "And in your case, Delight, I certainly do approve, for you use up enough energy for six girls in 24 hours, and this household is so fashionable it dines late. But what about your figure?"

"What about it?" asked Mary Lou, laughing, "I stay the same weight year round almost. Remember, I'm riding every day—and Lorry is going to let me jump next Spring. And I've my daily dozen. And do a lot more besides. And so I'm hungry most of the time," she confessed.

There was a scratch at the library door and an inquiring whine.

"Oh, please, may he come in?" Mary Lou begged. "He's been awfully good about waiting outside!"

Lorrimer rose and opened the door. Konig bounced past him, loped across the room and sat himself down at Mary Lou's feet, with a huge sigh of relief, his red tongue flickering across her hand and his entire body one welcoming waggle. Mary Lou tickled his pointed ears and gave him a forbidden lump of sugar.

Mathews raised an eyebrow at Margaret Lorrimer, remembering the long years when dogdom had been banished from this house.

2 SUSPICIOUS COPS RECOVER JEWELRY

St. Paul, Aug. 19.—(U.P.)—Two suspicious policemen were credited today with the recovery of $4,000 worth of jewels stolen from Mrs. Alberto Prampolini of White Bear.

Lieutenant William McMullen and Detective Jeff Dittrich while surveying a crowd at the Ramsey county fair noticed suspicious action on the part of a 16 year old boy. They followed the boy, they said, and when he entered his house they searched the premises.

Several displaced bricks in an old well led to their uprooting other bricks and uncovered the jewelry, police said. A .38 caliber revolver was found with the jewelry.

Larger Than National Capitol

The Capitol at Washington is 746 feet long and 270 feet wide. The palace of the Dalai Lama at Lhasa is 1,000 feet long, four stories in height, surmounted by a large dome covered with gold, as are also the peristyle pillars in front. It contains 490 rooms and 1,333 windows. The building was commenced 1,200 years ago and the most recent addition is 200 years old. A lamaserie nearby shelters 7,500 lamas.

Real Dollar Bird

While the term "dollar bird" may be used as a slang name for the American eagle, the real dollar bird is an Australian roller, prevailing blue and black in plumage. It is so called from the large roundish spot of white on its wings, shown in flight.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

WHITE WITH BROWN

The sleeveless wash frock is the uniform of the day at Southampton and Newport, and nothing could be cooler or fresher-looking. But, of course, each frock is different from another in line and detail. This one of white handkerchief linen with brown dots, for instance, has unusual distinction in its youthful collar edged with pleating, and in the peplum-like row of pleating that tops its skirt. The note of brown is carried out by the crushed ribbon belt, and the costume is complemented by a brown and white knitted turban, brown and white shoes and six-button white gloves.

Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5609. Sizes 12 to 44, 35 cents.

Lake at Glacier Foot

In the Swiss canton of Valais, at the foot of the great Aletsch glacier, will be found the beautiful little Lake Maelen, a dark-green expanse of water on which floating ice may be often seen. This little lake is nearly 8,000 feet above sea level and is formed by the glacier, which is 550 yards in length and 160 feet in depth.
